700 GERMANS JAILED, MANY DEPORTED

Essen, Feb. 26. (By International News Service.)—Seven hundred Germans have been arrested in the Bochum district in twenty-four hours and taken to Hattingen. There have been twenty additional deportations including several editors.

Bochum has been isolated from its own seized motor cars.

Reaction to the tension. French troops occupied a miners' relief station and seized coal intended for German schools.

Sacks of mail were seized at Hengsley and Dortmund. The French dug trenches in the streets and

ARREST 2 GIRLS IN STRIKE

Accused of Assault on Garment Workers; More Police in Picketed District

The second week of the garment makers' strike opened today with arrest of two girls for assault on a third girl, and with additional police assigned to strike duty.

Sarah Parker, nineteen years, of No. 11 Decatur street, South End, and Zelda Silverman, nineteen, of No. 65 Emerald street, South End, are the girls arrested.

They were among a group of striking picketers in Essex street, the police say, when identified today by Miss Margaret Pshara of No. 75 Hudson street as two who attacked her when she was on her way to work Friday.

Additional police were ordered for strike duty by Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson on request of Captain Herbert W. Goodwin of Lagrange Street Station.

15 MORE POLICEMEN.

The commissioner gave the captain fifteen men, who were promptly assigned to the garment shops affected by the strike.

There are seventeen shops involved located in the Beach street-Harrison avenue district. Where a couple of policemen were considered ample to handle the situation, there are now seventeen men on the job, one stationed at each plant.

The extra men were detailed after two stabbings and one arrest during the week-end, due to the strike. Captain Goodwin said:

WILL PROTECT WORKERS.

"We have no interest in the strike one way or another, an we don't take any sides, but those who wish to work are going to be protected. There's an element among the strikers which seems to feel that simply because they're on strike the whole city's got to shut down. That doesn't go.

"The police who have been assigned to the various shops are going to stay there until the strike is over. Those who want to work will get absolute police protection. If the fifteen police are not adequate to do this we'll get thirty, and if thirty aren't enough we'll get a hundred. Nobody will interfere with orderly and legal picketing, but, on the other hand, nobody will interfere with orderly and legal work."

Bare New Foreign Exchange Scheme

Some of the private banks in this State are nothing more or les than illegal bucket-shops.

The chief business of their managers is gambling in foreign exchanges.

One of them is beng run by a former associate of Charles Penzi.

Others are being conducted by former officials of the closed banks, whose notous manipulations ended in a whirlwind of disaste.

They are developing an orgy of wild speculation among the foreign-born population.

Hundreds of millions of dollars in this State are entrusted to their dangerou care.

The above are some of the revelations of the foreign-banking conditions in this State made today by the Joint Special Committee on Banking Laws in its special report to the Legislature.

Preceding a recommendation that no private banker be allowed to handle the people's money unless he has at first deposited a bond of $10,000 with the State Treasurer, the committee declared in its report:

"Such a situation is making it possible for persons without financial responsibility or moral character to engage promiscuously in the very business the Legislature of this Commonwealth has been seeking to control, unsuccessfully thus far, in the past seventeen years, by requiring licenses, bonds and State supervision.

EX-PONZI AID RUNS BANK.

"Evidence has been received, for instance, showing that one or more former associates of Charles Ponzi, international coupon swindler, are now engaged in this business and are exempt from the provisions of Chapter 169 of the General Laws.

"Also that Hyman Sloboikin, whose private bank was closed by the commissioner of banks, is now operating under the name of the Universal Exchange, and is exempt from the law.

"Two or more employes of closed Boston trust companies are acting as managers of 'banking and brokerage' concerns.

"The Lowell Exchange Corporation is conducted by David Bernstein, who surrendered his State license as a private banker. O. S. Duarte & Co. was until recently a private bank under regulation of the Commissioner of Banks.

"Its manager was formerly in charge of the foreign exchange department of the defunct Cosmopolitan Trust Company.

"Reports from licensed private bankers show that at least three of them are now transmitting money abroad through G. S. Duarte & Co., although this corporation is under no State regulation or control, beyond, possibly, a brokerage license from the Department of Public Utilities."

After pointing out that the safe keeping business is used merely as a "feeder" for the business of transmission and foreign exchange, the

TAYLOR IS ACCUSED BY RIDDLE

Declares $50-a-Week President Double-Crossed Him on Bank Deal

By BERT FORD.

Hollis L. Riddle, Boston banker, was "double-crossed" by Frank L. Taylor, jailed president of the First National Bank of Warren, and by the law firm of Cowee & Fletcher of Worcester, which handled the sale of the wrecked bank, Riddle's counsel, Attorney George L. Ellsworth of No. 6 Beacon street, charged today.

Attorney Fletcher announced that a suit for $15,000 would be entered in Superior Court in Worcester on March 1 against Cowee & Fletcher, and a similar action for $15,000 against Taylor, alleged member of the Marcino-Worthington notorious bank-wrecking gang, at the same time.

Notices have been served. The suits on behalf of Riddle have been prepared by the law firm of Dewire, York & Ellsworth. They are based on Riddle's charge that he suffered financial loss by the alleged failure of Cowee & Fletcher and Taylor, the thirty-day president of the Warren bank, to live up to their

ANDERSON'S SON AND GIRL HELD

Arrested for Drunk After "Sidewalk Scene" Outside Copley-Plaza

Young Dick Anderson, son of Federal Judge George W. Anderson, was in Municipal Court today, as result of stepping out Saturday night and pacing rapidly.

With him on the stepping and in court today as well was Miss Joyce Sterling of the Hotel Brunswick and New Haven, who is given the sobriquet by the police of "Mysterious Joyce."

Young Anderson, charged with intoxication, was released without arraignment as a first offender.

But the case of "Mysterious Joyce," also charged with intoxication, was continued to March 2 for investigation.

The youth—he is 21—is formally known as Richard B. Anderson and his home is at No. 219 Fisher avenue, Brookline.

SIDEWALK SCENE.

As the police relate it, Anderson and Miss Sterling were making rounds of some of the hotel dances Saturday evening and landed finally at the Copley-Plaza.

But the Copley-Plaza management

ISADORA MAY LOSE HER CITIZENSHIP

Washington, Feb. 26. (By International News Service.)—Isadora Duncan, dancer, who hurriedly departed from the United States a few weeks ago after a fight with her young Russian husband in a New York hotel, may lose her American citizenship.

Secretary of Labor Davis announced today that he would ask Attorney-General Daugherty to search the statutes for a law to withdraw Isadora's citizenship right in this country because of recent statements by her reflecting on American customs and institutions.

WOMAN, 86, SAVED AT BROCKTON FIRE

Brockton, Feb. 26.—When heavy smoke from a fire that started in the cellar of a nine-apartment house on North Main street today filled the apartments, Mrs. Sarah A. Packard, eighty-six, was partially overcome in her bed in which she has been an invalid for three years. She was rescued by Assistant Chief John Murphy, who carried her to the street from the third floor.

Ten other persons, all women but one, experienced great difficulty in escaping. Mrs. A. A. Kaltenborn, with her baby in her arms, lost her way in the smoke-filled corridors until escorted out by the firemen.

Hoseman Carl Austin's head was cut and an artery severed when glass was blown out by a back draught.

LASKER DISCUSSES SHIPS WITH HARDING

Washington, Feb. 26.—Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board today discussed with President Harding the liquidation policy which the Administration has determined to adopt under the merchant marine laws, as an incident to failure of the shipping bill. A definite plan, Mr. Lasker said, would probably be passed upon by the full board this week and given approval by the President. He declined to divulge details.

$1513 FOR WIDOW OF SLAIN POLICEMAN

Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley today forwarded to the Framingham city officials a check for $1513 for the widow and orphans of Policeman William H. Welch, who was murdered by an unidentified thief on the morning of February 3. The checks represents a collection made by Boston policemen of all divisions. Welch's body was discovered in a store and evidence showed that he had arrested a man who later shot him as he was telephoning for assistance.

STAR IN "HE WHO GETS SLAPPED" IS SLAPPED

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Mild excitement was caused in the lobby of a theatre when an unidentified first nighter slapped Richard Bennett, star of "He Who Gets Slapped," which recently closed a run here.

Bystanders intervened before a second blow was struck. Mr. Bennet said an argument arose because his party entered at the second act and disturbed his assailant, who sat with his companion in aisle seats.

FORBES TO FIGHT INVESTIGATION

Washington, Feb. 26 (By International News Service).—Col. Charles R. Forbes, on returning today after a European trip, said he was "ready to fight" accusations against his administration of soldier relief, which led to the Senate authorizing an investigation of the veterans' bureau. Forbes asked for an appointment with President Harding. "There have been instances, I admit, of waste," he said. "These are to be regretted, but in this job no man can be happy and perfect with so many different elements to please."

TO PROBE SALE OF ROCK AS COAL

Washington, Feb. 26.—A Federal investigation by the Bureau of Mines of alleged irregularities in the sale of anthracite coal was ordered today by the Senate on charges of "misgrading coal in domestic sizes," the extent to which misgraded coal was sold to the public and recommendations.

RIDDLE CLAIMS TAYLOR DOUBLE-CROSSED HIM ON BANK SALE

SUES LAW FIRM AND $50 A WEEK PRESIDENT FOR $15,000

agreement to deal with him in carrying out the sale of the bank.

COMPLICATES BANK AFFAIRS.

The members of the firm of Cowee & Fletcher are named as defendants in Riddle's suit. They are Howard W. Cowee, William J. Thayer, Edward F. Fletcher and Raymond B. Fletcher. Raymond B. Fletcher is United States commissioner in Worcester, where all four defendants reside.

The Riddle lawsuits further complicate the tangled affairs of the closed First National Bank of Warren, the sensational looting of which so soon after the Marcino gang got control has exposed a bank-wrecking conspiracy national in its scope.

According to the claims of Riddle and his counsel, Cowee & Fletcher agreed to sell the stock of the bank to him and he was in turn to sell it for the agreement had been made.

Following out that [illegible] Attorney Ellsworth today, Cowee & Fletcher and Taylor acted behind his back. Mr. Riddle feels that they double-crossed him.

SOLD FOR LESS.

"As Mr. Riddle intimated in an earlier statement, Cowee & Fletcher made a larger profit by selling the bank in Warren direct to Taylor.

"I am not at liberty to mention the price asked, but am privileged to state that the figure Cowee & Fletcher agreed to sell the stock to Mr. Riddle for was smaller than that which they subsequently sold it for to Taylor behind Mr. Riddle's back.

"It should be said in justice to Mr. Riddle with all possible emphasis that he never had any prior dealings with Taylor before the latter looked him up in Boston last October, and Mr. Riddle never had any dealings or acquaintance with Marcino, the man of many aliases, nor the Goldmans.

Q.—Was Mr. Riddle acquainted with a man named Worthington? A.—"Absolutely not," Mr. Ellsworth replied.

ACTED FOR HIMSELF.

Q.—Is Worthington, John D. Worthington, or any other man of that name connected directly or indirectly with the Ridworth Investment Company at No. 6 Madison avenue, New York? A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—Did Mr. Riddle act for the Ridworth Investment Company in arranging for purchase and sale of the stock of the First National Bank of Warren? A.—He did not. He acted entirely for himself in that transaction.

Q.—Is Mr. Riddle Boston agent for the Ridworth Investment Company? A.—Not to my knowledge but I do know that he didn't act for that concern in the Warren bank deal.

Q.—Who introduced Taylor to Riddle when Taylor came to Boston from Buffalo last October? A.—I do not know. Mr. Riddle is so well known in banking circles that Taylor undoubtedly heard of him by general reputation. And Mr. Riddle acted in his own interest. He found out Taylor represented the Bison Holding Company and the Niagara Life Insurance Company and that he was manager of one of the concerns and he reported favorably to Cowee & Fletcher in Worcester.

Q.—Mr. Riddle acted for the Ridworth Investment Company in no way or capacity? A.—He did not. He saw a chance to carry it out with a profit to himself. We claim that Cowee & Fletcher agreed to sell the stock to him and that Taylor served to buy it from Riddle, but while Mr. Riddle was out of town the sale was made by Cowee & Fletcher to Taylor direct.

"Taylor after first representing to Mr. Riddle that he was acting for the Bison Holding Company and the Niagara Life Insurance Company to obtain a bank near Boston as a depository for those concerns, later tried to do business with Mr. Riddle on his own account, saying, 'You can do business with me,' but Mr. Riddle held to the original agreement."

Attorney Ellsworth said Mr. Riddle was out of town today. He said Mr. Riddle had formerly had an office at No. 50 Congress street, but at present he has no business headquarters in this city. Mr. Riddle lives on Fairview Terrace, Winchester.

LINK 'WOLF' AND MARCINO IN BANK PLOT

Linking of Joseph Marcino, wrecker of the First National Bank of Warren, with John W. Worthington, the "Wolf of LaSalle street," is expected to reveal a plot to loot banking institutions, the magnitude of which eclipses the imagination of prime fiction.

Already the wrecking of one bank has been charged to the pair, with Marcino playing the role of "Huckie" Daw to the J. Rufus Wallingford of the patriarchal plunger who has been sentenced in Chicago Federal Court to two years for using the mails to defraud.

HAD $150,000 IN LOOT.

Department of Justice agents probing the association of the two frenzied financiers declare they have uncovered trails that extend to banks all over the country—trails that signify cunningly conceived plots involving millions of dollars.

Worthington, whose predatory financial operations extend over thirty years, appears as the teacher of the youthful Marcino. The ex-barber appears as an apt pupil save that his career was shattered in a few short years. The "Wolf" never had a sentence recorded against him until February 22 last and that on a twelve-year-old indictment.

The pair, as partners, first ran afoul of the law when they were arrested in 1919 at La Salle, Illinois, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Illinois Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago. Marcino was released on bail, but Worthington was held in default of $50,000 bail.

In connection with a bank failure. Nearly $150,000 in stolen bonds was found on Worthington, who was then known as "W. C. C. Cummings." The "Wolf" declared that they were given to him by Marcino, but the latter denied the accusation. Both managed to elude punishment.

MARCINO QUITS "WOLF."

They next appear together in the theft of $100,000 in bonds from a Pittsburgh bank. Then in rapid succession they have been linked in bank failures at Ottawa and Toluca, Illinois.

Marcino appears to have cut loose from the "Wolf" some time later and from that time on his star was waning despite the success of his operations.

Just how extensive were the plans of the pair, the Department of Justice agents will not disclose. They do assert, however, that their disclosures will be amazing. Meanwhile, Marcino is being sought in Mexico and South America.

Frank L. Taylor, president of the First National Bank of Warren, has had a brief respite from facing his accusers in Boston Federal Court. He is charged with looting the bank of $212,000 in securities—the securities which his employer, Marcino, carried off.

Taylor was scheduled to leave Chicago for Boston on Saturday, but his departure was delayed until today, and he will probably appear in court on Wednesday.

Paris—Theophile Delcasse, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, will be given a state funeral on Wednesday. The government will bear the expenses. The body was brought to Paris today.

BLAME SOFT COAL FOR RENT BOOST

More coal stuff!

William Hirsh has boosted the rent of the thirty-two tenants in the apartment house at No. 99 Norway street, Back Bay, from $25 to $40 a month.

He appeared today before the Commission on the Necessaries of Life to answer to the complaint of Thomas A. Ford, a tenant.

"It takes twice as much soft coal as hard coal to heat the property," he said, "and the last consignment of coal I bought had so much slate in it that I couldn't find enough barrels to hold the slate."

Ford will be allowed by Hirsh to remain in his apartment at the old rent until May 1.

WOMEN FIGHT TO SAVE BEACH

To the accompaniment of rounds of applause from a score of women who fear the loss of Magazine Beach, Cambridge, to their children, Mayor Curley and Mayor Edward W. Quinn today launched broadsides against the scheme to build a new bridge over the Charles from St. Paul street, Brookline, to Magazine Beach, Cambridge.

Arrayed against them, at a hearing before the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs, were a score of Brookline residents, headed by Representative Reuton Whidden, that the bridge should be on the site of the present Cottage Farm bridge.

Whidden said the Metropolitan District Commission and a dozen traffic experts have already agreed that the new route from St. Paul street, over Commonwealth avenue, across the river on the new bridge and thence up Magazine street to Central square, Cambridge, is necessary to relieve the heavy traffic.

"How about the children?" said Miss Nora J. Driscoll, of the Cambridge School Committee. "This bridge will cut the Magazine Beach bridge and playground in two and will send along a constant procession of autos that will be dangerous to their lives and safety."

Mayors Curley and Quinn declared that the last Legislature decided this long and bitter row by deciding

In order to understand properly the part played by suggestion, or rather by autosuggestion, it is enough to know that the unconscious self is the grand director of all our functions.

Make this believed, as I said above, that a certain organ which does not function well must perform its function, and instantly the order is transmitted. The organ obeys with docility, and either at once or little by little performs its functions in a normal manner. This explains simply and clearly how by means of suggestion one can stop hemorrhages, cure constipation, cause fibrous tumours to disappear, cure paralysis, tubercular lesions, varicose, ulcers, etc.

Let us take for example, a case of dental hemorrhage which I had the opportunity of observing in the consulting room of M. Gauthe, a dentist at Troyes. A young lady whom I had helped to cure herself of asthma from which she had suffered for eight years, told me one day that she wanted to have a tooth out. As I knew her to be very sensitive, I offered to make her feel nothing of the operation. She naturally accepted with pleasure, and we made an appointment with the dentist. On the day we had arranged we presented ourselves at the dentist's and, standing opposite my patient, I looked fixedly at her, saying: "You feel nothing, you feel nothing," etc., etc., and then while still continuing the suggestion I made a sign to the dentist. In an instant the tooth was out without Mlle. D—— turning a hair. As fairly often happens, a hemorrhage followed, but I told the dentist that I would try suggestion without his using a hemostatic, without knowing beforehand what would happen. I then asked Mlle. D. to look at me fixedly, and I suggested to her that in two minutes the hemorrhage would cease of its own accord, and we waited. The patient spat blood again once or twice and then ceased. I told her to open her mouth, and we both looked and found that a clot of blood had formed in the dental cavity.

PONZI'S AIDS EXPOSED AS PRIVATE BANKERS

committee explains the various speculative methods employed in the transmitting of money to foreign countries and speaks of the foreign exchange transactions as follows:

"It has already been pointed out that the foreign exchange transactions of these banks have been developed into an orgy of speculation among their patrons, a class of people who can ill afford to lose their savings.

"Investigation has shown that the foreign exchange transactions of these banks are extensive throughout the State, and that through them large sums of money are being applied to the buying and selling on margins, by contract or by cash, of foreign currencies.

USE INSTALLMENT PLAN.

"Investigators have found indications that considerable of the safe-keeping deposits in these banks are in reality but payments on account of foreign exchange for future delivery and are so carried in order that no liability, or a small liability on account of foreign exchange contracts appears on the books.

"The reason for this deception is that the commissioner of banks requires these banks to cover on all such contracts—although his efforts in this respect have not been successful. Investigators have also found that the majority of personal loans now carried by the private bankers are by way of notes taken for balances due on contracts to buy foreign exchange.

"A large per cent. of the foreign exchange business is conducted on the instalment plan. The safe-keeping business of these banks keeps them in touch with thrifty, immigrants and it is comparatively simple for the bankers to entice these people into foreign exchange gambling, by holding out the lure of easy and quick profits.

"Contracts for future delivery are made and payments begin. Many of the purchasers stop paying before their contracts are completed, and as a result, lose all they have paid.

"Many of those who completes the contracts find themselves in possession of foreign money, which, due to a drop in the exchange, is worth far less than they paid for it.

MANY LOSE THEIR ALL.

"A large percentage of those who have suffered losses probably would never have lost their money had they not placed their savings in the hands of persons whose chief business is gambling in foreign exchange, and who are always anxious to divert such deposits from a branch of the business bringing in small returns, into the most lucrative branch of the bank—foreign exchange.

"The foreign exchange business as conducted is essentially the same as the illegal bucket shop. Many of the contracts are not covered by the private banker, as he knows that his customers will not or cannot complete them. It is practically impossible to determine whether or not he has covered, especially where the banker carries a foreign account which cannot be checked up."

The committee reports legislation prohibiting any person, partnership, corporation or association from carrying on the business of transmitting money abroad in sums averaging less than $500, except "duly incorporated banks, express companies having contracts with railroad or steamship companies or doing an international express business, or transatlantic steamship companies or telegraph companies, or those persons who shall furnish a bond in the sum of $100,000 to the State treasurer."

BUILDING CALLED A FIRE TRAP

Priceless Police Records in Danger at Headquarters, Says Wilson

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson today denounced the Pemberton square police headquarters as a fire trap which endangers the priceless police records, such as the Bertillon system and the Rogue's Gallery.

Mayor Curley announced plans for spending in excess of $2,500,000 for police and fire department improvements. Both appeared at a public hearing before the Municipal Finance Committee of the Legislature.

Commissioner Wilson declared that the "inadequate sanitary arrangements" in many stations are a menace to the health of the police and prisoners. In the old Hyde Park station, he said, with windows unprotected by screens in the Summer great swarms of flies and mosquitoes make life miserable for the policemen in their quarters.

Mayor Curley announced the following projects under consideration:

NEW BUILDINGS.

$1,000,000—For a ten-story police headquarters on the site of the present Pemberton Square headquarters.

$250,000—For a new police station in Hyde Park.

$100,000—For an addition to the East Dedham Street Station.

$250,000—For a new police station in Roslindale.

$525,000—For a new headquarters for the fire alarm telegraph system and a new fire headquarters, the latter to be built upon the Elevated subway system at the junction of Tremont street and Shawmut avenue.

"The fire alarm telegraph system headquarters is in a dangerous lumber district," said the Mayor, "and a serious fire there would leave Boston without an alarm system for at least a year.

NO LETUP IN CRIME.

"It will probably be necessary to build new courthouses in Dorchester and East Boston because there has been a serious increase in police business since prohibition. There is no indication of any letup in serious crimes, or in those which are classed as misdemeanors.

"The best way for you to know that we need a new police headquarters is for you to come over and visit the one we are now in," said Commissioner Wilson.

"We are occupying two old brick buildings which were used as dwelling houses when the city leased them for police purposes thirty-five years ago.

"Attached to them is a wooden ell, which is a constant source of danger from fire. We are always in danger of losing by fire the most valuable police records, including the Bertillon and finger-print systems and the Rogues Gallery, all of which are kept in wooden cases.

SANITARY CONDITIONS.

"The sanitary conditions are intolerable. There are toilets there without a single source of ventilation.

"Conditions are so bad in Hyde Park that the officers on duty there couldn't get into the old wooden building if they all appeared at the same time. In some of the stations we are getting rid of the old bathtube and are installing shower baths."

Mayor Curley said he probably would be able to finance all but the $1,000,000 headquarters building within the debt limit. He said if the Legislature accepts Governor Cox's inaugural request for the construction of a new memorial building to house the Supreme Court and the Social Law Library, Suffolk County will probably be able to get along with the Suffolk County Courthouse for twenty-five years more.

He said the lease of the police headquarters buildings will expire in two years.

Dry Leader Accused of Larceny

SEEK TO INDICT ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE HEAD

New York, Feb. 26.—Acting District-Attorney Pecora announced today he would go before the Grand Jury with a request that William H. Anderson, State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, be indicted on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the collection of funds of the organization.

Mr. Pecora, who for several months has been investigating Anderson's connection with the league's financial affairs, said the charge would be based on disposition of $24,700 which the dry leader said had been used for publicity purposes.

Mr. Pecora said he was forced to bring the case before the grand jury because of the refusal of Mr. Anderson to make any explanation of his expenditure.

FAMOUS TOREADOR IS GORED BY BULL

Chicago.—Investigation was being made of a wreck here yesterday in which a man was killed and fifty persons injured, four seriously. A Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee train crashed into a Northwestern "L" train. The train crews blamed the dense fog.

New York.—Miss Sadie Jacobs was a member of a poker party at the home of Harry Berkowitz in Brooklyn. Six masked men appeared. They got $10,000 in jewelry and cash. When they told Miss Jacobs to give them her $1,000 engagement ring she began to struggle. One of the bandits fired twice. One bullet hit her in the left lung and just below her heart.

SURRENDER HALTED BY WOMEN

Mary MacSwiney and Other Leaders Urge Republicans to Keep on Fighting

*Chicago, Feb. 26.—A campaign for a $1,000,000 fund to assist Eamon DeValera and the faction in Ireland which is demanding the establishment of a republic, was launched at a meeting of delegates from several States. Lawrence Ginnell, said to be a representative of DeValera, urged a boycott on all British products and efforts to have Congress recognize the Irish "republic."

By DANIEL O'CONNELL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Dublin, Feb. 26.—Women leaders among the Irish Republicans, led by Mary MacSwiney, have frustrated widespread surrender by Republicans in the County Cork area, it was reported today by the Free State commandant in the city of Cork.

County Cork has been the hotbed of rebellion against the Free States ever since the Dublin government was formed. It was there that Michael Collins was shot to death.

Word was received that many Republican soldiers were contemplating giving up their arms, but this was followed by another dispatch saying that the women, urged on by Miss MacSwiney, were demanding that the men fight to the bitter end.

Free State headquarters at Bantry sent word that the Republicans in that district had been driven into the mountains, where they are surrounded by Free State forces. The Republican leaders sent out word that they were willing to give up their arms.

So far no reply has been received to the appeal which Miss Mary MacSwiney sent to Pope Pious XI., asking religious consolation for her sister Annie, who has been on hunger strike for eleven days in Kilmainham prison. Mary asserted that Roman Catholic priests have refused to administer sacraments to her sister.

ITALIAN PRINCESS BETROTHED, IS REPORT

Rome, Feb. 26.—It is reported in diplomatic circles that Princess Mafalda, second daughter of the King of Italy, has been betrothed to the Crown Prince of Belgium.

The Crown Prince is twenty-one years old. When seventeen he served in the Belgian army as a private in the trenches. He was educated along democratic lines, mixed with the commoners and is beloved by his people. He accompanied the King and Queen to America on their tour in 1919.

MANCHESTER DROPS FIFTEEN POLICEMEN

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 26.—Fifteen policemen were dropped from the local force today as the result of the recent decision of the board of aldermen to refuse to appropriate the sum of $40,000 to the 1923 budget. This reduces the police force to eighty-five members.

charging them with violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act in connection with the tentative acquisition of the plants and business of Morris & Co. by the Armour interests.

Secretary Wallace set April 2 for a hearing in Washington.

Armour & Co., of Illinois, Armour & Co., of Delaware; J. Ogden Armour and Morris & Co., were named in the complaint.

The complaint stated that on December 20, J. Ogden Armour entered into a written contract with Morris & Co. to acquire all its assets. In so doing, it was charged, parties to the contract violated the packers and stockyards act.

Secretary Wallace claimed such acquisition would have the effect of restraining interstate commerce or of creating a monopoly in purchase of livestock, in shipment and sale of meat and other livestock products, and in manipulating or controlling prices.

The agreement called for a purchase price of $30,000,000, of which $16,000,000 was to be in cash; $10,000,000 in preferred stock and $10,000,000 in common stock of Armour & Co.

BIDDEFORD BLOCK DESTROYED BY FIRE

Biddeford, Feb. 26.—The third threatening fire within ten days from an undetermined cause resulted in a total loss of $40,000 to the occupants and the Adams Block, a business block, Main and Alfred streets, today. An hour after the fire was discovered the danger was so great that aid was called from Saco.

STAR BALKS AT WIFE'S BILL FOR DRESSES

Monte Carlo, Feb. 26.—John McCormack is Irish but he has just pulled a stunt that makes him more Scotch than Harry Lauder, and pales the most weird story of Harry's thrift.

Mrs. McCormack (she has been that for seventeen years) bought some gowns and the bill made John take a high note that would come in handy on the concert stage. He refused to pay for the gowns, but gave his sanction to a plan whereby Mrs. McCormack could pay for them herself.

He gave his permission for her to work as a mannequin for the firm which was rash enough to give her credit.

SEEKS TO JAIL ALL GOUGERS

Increase to 10 Cents a Pound Denounced by Honest Dealers, Says Rep. Canty

An order directing Attorney General Benton to investigate the latest jumps in the price of sugar and to determine "whether there is a monopolistic conspiracy to corner the sugar market and still further advance the prices," was filed in the House today by epresentative William A. Canty of Roxbury.

"A few weks ago sugar was selling for less than eight cents a pound," said Canty, "but today it jumped to ten cents in several South Boston, Roxbury and Dorchester stores.

"There is no scarcity of sugar. The market is being manipulated artificially.

"Honest wholesalers are advising their customers that there is plenty of sugar, are urging them to buy only in small quantities and actually refuse to advance the prices.

"The real way to stop this manipulation is to put the conspiring profiteer behind the bars."

FUREY PLANNED TO SELL MILLION IN STOLEN BONDS

ARRANGED FOR COUP IN CANADA

"Big Ed" Plotted to Have Gluck Dispose of Loot in Montreal

How Big Ed Furey, pal of "Nicky Arnstein" and alleged bond and rum thief, returned the automobile and ring he had taken from Joseph Gluck and urged him to go to Montreal where plans were entered into with a brokerage firm to dispose of millions of dollars' worth of bonds stolen from Wall Street, is told in the final instalment of Gluck's sensational confession.

Furey is a prisoner in East Cambridge jail, police are hunting "Count" Corrigan as a confederate of Furey's in the wholesale liquor theft along the North Shore. Said Gluck, continuing his statement to the New York authorities:

"He took me up to the dealer where the car was kept. I said: 'Well, I don't want the car. I have no money now.' He said: 'All right, I guess you can get about $2,800 for it.' It was damaged. He took it to another place on 50th street and the man bought it there. And he made out the check and Furey indorsed that check. This amounted to $2,500 or $2,400.

GIRL OF 5 TELLS HOW KIDNAPED SISTER OF 6 WAS SLAIN

ATTACKED, THROWN ON ICE

Vacant Houses, Freight Cars and Streams Are Being Searched to Find Body

Philadelphia, Feb. 26—Nearly all hope of finding alive six-year-old Lillian Gilmore, who, with her five-year-old sister, Dorothy, was kidnaped from in front of her home Saturday, driven in an automobile to the outskirts of the city and assaulted, was abandoned by the authorities today.

The search, however, continued, a large number of the little girls' neighbors having joined in the hunt. The police had orders to examine all vacant houses, lots, freight cars and any other place where the child or her body might be concealed. The Delaware River and nearby streams were being dragged.

STORY OF KILLING

The condition of Dorothy, who, after having been put out of the motor car in an isolated section, finally made her way home and identified a suspect as the man who had carried her and her sister off, was reported today as improved.

Physicians said that she had not been as seriously hurt in the attack as was at first believed.

It was the story told by Dorothy that leads the police to believe her sister was killed. She said the man first attacked Lillian, threw her body from the ice," then drove farther on and attacked her. Lillian's body was covered with blood and her eyes were closed, the child said.

MORGAN WAS SEEN

Wylie Morgan, identified by Dorothy as the kidnaper, and who the police declare was wanted in Texas on a similar charge, continued to maintain silence. He refused to discuss the case. The prisoner, who was employed in a hat factory, is about thirty-eight years old and was said to have come to this city from Maud, Texas.

Evidences of a struggle were found in the automobile said to have been driven by Morgan and there were blood stains on the rear seat, the authorities said. Blood stains also were alleged to have been found on the prisoner's clothing.

took umbrage at their actions. They were requested to leave. There was some talk. But Dick and the "Mysterious Joyce" did make an exit through the Dartmouth street door.

But the cool night air failed to cool the couple. There was a tremendous argument with one or two of the hotel attaches. Loud words became louder.

Suddenly "Mysterious Joyce" released piercing shrieks:

"My ring—my ring—my $4,000 ring!"

WORTH ABOUT 40 CENTS.

Patrolman Cyril Considine was stepping about this time on his regular beat. He stepped up and arrested Anderson and his companion on charges of intoxication.

At Back Bay police station the girl's ring was found on Anderson. But there was no charge made that the lad was in possession of it improperly. The inference was that he was merely taking care of it for the girl during the evening.

The police also knocked the $4,000 valuation of the ring, as loudly declaimed by Miss Sterling, deader than Tutankhamen.

The bauble would do well to fetch 4,000 German marks at a forced sale, the police aver.

Miss Sterling was released on bail after the case was continued. Meanwhile the police are trying to find out anything about her that might interest them.

LOTS OF MALE FRIENDS.

She is credited with having considerable acquaintance in New Haven, especially among Yale collegians.

MONTAGNE MANAGER ARRESTED IN PARIS

New York, Feb. 26.—Samuel A. Story, formerly vice-president and manager of the firm of E. La Montagne's Sons four members of which are now serving sentence in New Jersey for a bootlegging conspiracy, has been arrested in Paris on a charge of forgery at the request of the Federal authorities.

"Story fled to Europe because he knew he was going to be indicted," U. S. Attorney Hayward said. "We have evidence that he forged Federal permits for the withdrawal of liquor from government bonded warehouses."

HONEYMOON IS ENDED BY DEATH

A man and a woman, the latter a bride of but two weeks, were killed and the woman's husband and another man were overcome by gas fumes escaping from an open gas jet on the third floor of a lodging house at No. 502 Shawmut avenue, South End.

The woman was Mrs. Verna Rancourt, twenty-six years old. She and her husband, Sylva Rancourt, thirty-three years old, a veteran of the World War, were asleep in their room, when gas fumes, seeping in from the room of James A. McDonald, another lodger, attacked them.

McDonald and Mrs. Rancourt lost their lives, while William J. Kirwin, another lodger, was overcome in attempt to revive McDonald. Rancourt, who is in a dangerous condition at the City Hospital, was saved from death by the prompt work of Patrolman Fred Wright of the East Dedham street police station, who battered down the door of the room where the couple were asleep and applied first aid.

The police found gas fumes escaping from an open jet in McDonald's room, which is on the same floor as that of the young couple.

Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary is of the opinion that the tragedy was accidental.

The Rancourt couple were married on Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12.

DORCHESTER MAN IN SNOWBANK; DYING

Huddled in a snowbank, the unconscious form of Arthur J. Bouchie, thirty-six years old, of No. 599½ Somerville avenue, Somerville, was picked up in an unlighted area of Edward Everett square, Dorchester.

His body a mass of wounds Bouchie was carried into O'Connor's drug store at Columbia road and East Cottage street. He is dying at Carney Hospital.

Police are trying to locate the young man who carried Bouchie into the drug store and a woman who claimed to have seen him hit by a street car.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Bright Spots in Shadowland

"WHEN I Dream of Old Erin" sings Marion Davies. The harp and shamrock, which are appropriate symbols these days, have been mighty popular round the Cosmopolitan studios for weeks past where Miss Davies' new picture, "Little Old New York," is being made. It is the story of a plucky little Irish girl who came to America disguised as a boy in order to gain a fortune. As the roguish, quick-witted little "Pat" she is quite irresistible. "Little Old New York" is adapted to the screen from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young.

AN ARTISTIC MULE.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG, who has been appearing before the camera in the role of the wife of a sculptor, has been reading the life of the late Augustin Rodin, the great French sculptor. "Rodin would never do as a motion picture sculptor," said Miss Young. "He said he had no artistic temperament to speak of, and cared more for his work than for love of women. That's enough to put a scenarist out of a job before he even starts to work. We'll have to get along in our movie stories with artists of lesser calibre than Rodin, if with more temperament. The greatest amount of artistic temperament I have ever seen at any one time was expressed by a mule, who refused to make a certain turn in a road. He was an artist."

POST MAKES CHANGE.

GUY BATES POST, whose recent screen contributions have been "Omar the Tentmaker" and "The Masquerader," has severed his business relationship with Richard Walton Tully. A new contract has been madew ith Mr. Post by Sol Lesser. The contract calls for a series of photoplays starring Mr. Post, and it is of interest to learn that this artist of stage and screen will forsake the costume plays in his future cinema efforts.

BOOST FOR ONIONS.

JOHNNY HINES, famous screen comedian, asked the other day whether he found his work comparatively easy, replied:

"The onion can make anybody cry, but no one has discovered a vegetable that will make anyone laugh."

This sums up the comparative difficulties and differences between the technique of a comedian and the so-called emotional actor.

Studio Notes

Colleen Moore is confident that she could qualify for a musical comedy specialty as a result of her work in "The -Nth Commandment," by Fannie Hurst, in which she and James Morrison are featured. Before being cast for this new Cosmopolitan picture Miss Moore had to take instructions in soft shoe dancing for a cabaret scene.

Did you know that Tom Mix has the shortest name of any motion picture star? And that he has been making pictures for Fox—the only company for whom he has ever worked—for ten years?

Two of the screen's "grandest old men," Herbert Standing and E. M. Kimball, will be seen in important roles in Hugh Dierker's production of "The Other Side."

The Goldwyn Picture Corporation has secured the screen rights to Karel Capek's novel dramatic success "R. U. R."—"Rossum's Universal Robots"—presented by the Theatre Guild. The play is out of the beaten path of theatrical offerings and has been popular in Europe as well as in New York.

BLOOD SPOTS IN SNOW TRACE "BREAKER"

Four Somerville police followed the dotted line today because the dots were blood spots on the snow.

The dots began at broken rear windows of two stores on Broadway and led right to the doorway of a night lunchroom in Medford street, a few yards distant.

There the police found Stanley H. Gould, more familiarly known to the authorities as "Buck" Gould, nursing a cut right hand.

Mrs. William E. O'Brien of No. 254 Broadway was awakened from sleep early Sunday by sound of someone outside the bedroom window. She awakened her husband, who rushed to the open window and saw a man running away. O'Brien went through the window barefooted and pursued the stranger along Broadway to Thurston street, where he had to give up.

Early today somebody telephoned the police that a man was acting suspiciously along the neighborhood of No. 500 Broadway.

Patrolmen Claude Crossman and A. F. Sharry went out in the motor patrol, picking up Patrolmen Leo Farley and Harry Roche on the way. They found rear windows broken at the stores of William F. Butler, No. 494 Broadway, and J. S. Alpert, No. 496 Broadway. Wooden shutters had blocked the intruder, who had cut himself on the glass.

There was a trail of blood on the snow which guided the police to the injured Gould in the Medford street restaurant.

Before court today O'Brien went to the police station and identified Gould as the chap he chased.

Gould pleaded not guilty and waived examination. The police say he is forty-five, lives in Newburn avenue, Medford, and has served two prison terms. He was held for the Grand Jury.

Copper Gambles in Open Court to Prove His Case

There was open gambling in the court of Judge Stone in East Cambridge today.

A police sergeant did it. There was a machine whereby one dropped a nickel, and out dropped either nothing at all, or the same nickel, or a dime, or fifteen cents, or twenty cents.

After putting in several nickels the sergeant found he was in a dime.

Whereupon Judge Stone found Caciel Cormier, 14 Cedar street, guilty of keeping a gambling machine in his near-beer saloon at that address, and fined him $50. The machine in question was seized in a raid and tested for Judge Stone during the hearing.

U. S. OPENS WAR ON SMUGGLING IMMIGRANTS

Washington, Feb. 26.—Immigration authorities have begun an extensive survey of industrial areas in New Jersey and Northeastern Pennsylvania, Secretary Davis announced today, to determine how many aliens have been smuggled into the United States in violation of the Seamen's Act. Warrents ordering deportation of 198 individuals have been issued.

"Bootlegging of immigrants," under the Seaman's Act, has become serious, Secretary Davis said, and investigations indicate many thousands of undesirable aliens have entered the United States.

The La Follette Seaman's Act allows any seaman of a foreign vessel to leave when his ship arrives, and to remain in this country as long as sixty days before re-shipping. This provision has been thoroughly exploited, the secretary asserted, by vessel owners, labor agents, and presumably employers.

Some cargo vessels whose normal crews would be thirty or forty men have entered American ports with as many as 150 individuals carried on their rosters of employes, and many of these have not re-shipped.

They Fight Film

Millions of teeth, once dim and dingy, now shine like pearls

You see glistening teeth wherever you look today. Note them, and note the open smiles which show them.

It is so the world over. For careful people of some 50 nations now clean their teeth in a new way. They daily combat the film.

Think of that when you see pretty teeth. Then make this test to learn how you may benefit your own.

Film is unclean

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

It is a pity to leave on pretty teeth such a grimy, harmful coat. Those who do so may suffer, for film causes most tooth troubles.

Now easily removed

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So the tooth brush, used in old ways, left much film intact.

Dental science long sought ways to meet this situation. Eventually two film combatants were discovered. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research, and those two great film destroyers were embodied in it. That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. For seven years dentists have been urging its adoption. Now to millions of homes all the world over it is bringing a new dental era.

Unique effects

Pepsodent brings unique effects which modern authorities desire. One is to multiply the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits before they ferment and form acids. Old methods brought just opposite results. They decreased with every use those great natural tooth-protecting agents. Pepsodent gives them manifold power.

Old methods left teeth cloudy, unclean, unsafe. Tooth troubles were almost universal. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

Now there's a better method, and dainty people the world over now enjoy it. Won't you learn what it means to you?

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

SENSATIONAL RACES SURE AT INDOOR INTERCOLLEGIATES

EAGLE RELAY TEAM IN CHANCE TO DISPLAY

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

College track interest switches to New York this week, where on Saturday evening the annual Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. indoor track and field championships will be conducted.

The scene of this set of athletic contests is the spacious armory of the 22d Engineers at 168th street and Broadway. More than twenty of the leading colleges in the East will send athletes, and if the recent performances of many of those entered is to serve as the basis for prediction each event will abound in sensation.

Eleven events make up the program, the majority of which involve individuals or teams of so nearly equal ability that the competition for places should prove the liveliest in the history of the meet.

events are: ...unty-yard dash, one-mile run, ...le run, 60-yard high hurdles, ...g high jump, running broad ...ole vault, 16-pound shot put, ...weight throw, 440-yard ...e 880-yard relay—the middle events not being scheduled in the scheme to have the ... 880-yard runners at ... for the two relay num-

An idea of the quality of the fields to meet in the events is furnished in reciting a few of those who will clash in the 70-yard dash.

Champion Leconey Will Be One of the Number.

Their number will include Al Leconey of Lafayette, intercollegiate champion; Fred Lovejoy of Cornell, winner of the Harvard-Cornell-Dartmouth 40-yard sprint; Harold Lever of Pennsylvania, winner of the 40-yard, 60-yard and 70-yard dashes at the New York A. C. meet; Charley Carroll of Holy Cross, winner of the New England A. A. A. U. 40-yard championship; Alan Woodring of Syracuse, winner of the Olympic 200-meter championship; Karle Rusnak of Yale, who was but a hair's breadth behind Lever in the three New York A. C. meet dashes.

Each of that list and several others who will compete has equalled or has come within a thin fraction of equalling the record for the distance, and that a new mark in that event as well as in several others will result from the battles over the boards is a reasonable prediction.

Two Field Event Men Have Set World's Records

Already this year two of the field event men who will show here set new world's marks—LeRoy Brown of Dartmouth having set a new high jump record, and Ralph Hills of Pennsylvania having set a new shot-put figure. While Johnnie Magee's weight star, "Toots" Tootel of Bowdoin, in establishing, on Saturday, a new New England mark in the 35-pound weight event, and Ken Libbey of Dartmouth in topping the vaulting bar at nearly 12 feet 6 inches, the same afternoon have indicated the possibility that they may join the list of world's record holders on Saturday night.

The meet will give the Boston College two-mile relay team a long awaited chance to show its calibre. Only has Jack Ryder been able to place that team in competition this season, and on that occasion it handily defeated the crack array from Syracuse. Consequently Jack and B. C. followers generally are welcoming the approaching opportunity in the Intercollegiate meet.

Most New Enland Colleges Will Send Teams

The majority of New England colleges holding membership in the I. C. A. A. A. plan to send teams to New York. Dartmouth, fresh from its great triumph at Mechanics Building, will send a large delegation; Yale will send another sizeable collection; so will Harvard, Boston College and Tech, and there will be individual performers or relay teams representing Bowdoin, Williams, Holy Cross, Amherst, Wesleyan and other New England institutions, and that this section will come home with the major share of honors is the general expectation.

Immediately before Saturday's triangular meet Harry Hillman, coach of Dartmouth, made the announcement that "fight" would win the championship, and if ever a prediction was forced out Harry's was in the Dartmouth triumph.

As Predicted by Hillman, "Fight" Won the Meet

There were three events on the program that were considered angling—the broad jump, the 300-yard run and the hurdles—and, in each, Dartmouth athletes of little repute or experience gave exhibitions of grit and pluck that sent them in as winners or second placers, and the eight points gained from the broad jump, plus the eight points gained in the 300-yard run, plus the eight points gained in the hurdles, gave Dartmouth the winning edge.

Some there were, and we were among them, who thought the judges erred in naming Hughes of Dartmouth as the second man in the hurdles, for it appeared that Fletcher of Harvard really was that place. However, that advantage to Dartmouth only compensated for an earlier error when the judges failed to place Fitterman of Dartmouth, who appeared to have finished second in the 40-yard dash.

Few Can Forget Burke's Brilliant Performances

Chapin of Harvard, who finished fourth, was given second place.

Few who witnessed the meet will soon forget the brilliant exhibition by Billy Burke, the Harvard captain, in capturing the 600 and 1,000. When Billy chose to advance the spark he fairly flew over the boards and if he is in similar form next Saturday he will take a lot of beating in the intercollegiate one mile.

In the case of each there was cause for disqualification and both will do well to read the rules and abide by them in the future, for some time such actions may cost them and their respective colleges much-desired points.

Did Parker Pick 'Em in Triangulars? Yes, Indeed

Did you check up on the triangular meet selections offered by Charles E. Parker, the Boston American's college sports editor, in Saturday's editions?

He picked Lovejoy to win the 40-yard dash, and he did.

He picked Burke to win the 600, and he did.

He picked Burke to win the 1,000, and he did.

He picked Kirby to win the mile, and he did.

He picked Sollit to win the hurdles, and he did.

He picked Brown to win the high jump, and he did.

He picked Libbey to win the pole vault, and he did.

He picked Hafer and Murphy to score in the 300; Walsh to score in the 600; Bullen to score in the mile; Bonsal, Young and Lund to score in the two-mile; Bugbee to score in the hurdles; Nichols to score in the high jump; Skiles and Gouinlock to score in the pole vault; Eastman to score in the shot-put; Swenson and Marshall to score in the weight throw, and they did, did, did.

And he picked Dartmouth to win with a total of 49 points, and Dartmouth scored 50.

Not bad? What?

LYNN SHOW FOR ELKS' FUND

Lynn has one of the red letter boxing meets of the year tonight for the benefit of the A. C. holds a show for the building fund of Lynn Lodge of Elks. The home of Lynn's "Best People on Earth" was destroyed by fire and the lodge is working with might and main to obtain a fund to start the construction of a new rest for the members.

Matchmaker Jack Murphy, of the Casino Club, has arranged for forty rounds of fighting that should satisfy even the most blase of the lodge members. Those paired for action are Steve Adams and Young Kennoyer, Johnny Corbett and Kid Lee, Bo Eu Sirelli and Ruby Levine, Bunch O'Neil and Barney Troy, and Frankie Ryan and Johnny Fox.

COACH NASH ON LOOKOUT FOR PITCHERS

Tufts battery men will begin indoor preliminary work this afternoon at Goddard gym. About twenty candidates are expected to report to Coach Ken Nash for the first workout. Tufts faces an unusually stiff schedule this Spring and must find at least two young pitchers of varsity grade.

Frank Roach, who held down the third base berth in 1922, will endeavor to fill the shoes of Owen Keefe, and on the form displayed on the few occasions last Spring, in which he was sent behind the bat, even the redoubtable Owen should not be greatly missed.

As Captain Tubber White can also don the mask and do a first class job as a receiver Nash is not worrying about that department, and will bend every effort to develop two dependable flingers from the recruits reporting today.

Shevlin Says Shade Needn't Worry About Getting Bout

The following letter from Billy Henderson, the manager of Eddie Shevlin, speaks for itself:

Sporting Editor:

Dear Sir—It seems to me as though the managers of Navy Shade and Georgie Ward have gone far enough in their foolish challenges to Johnny Wilson. Shade and Ward are reported as offering the middleweight champion $25,000 for a match for the middleweight title. What a great laugh that must give the champion. No wonder Johnny tells them to step up and post their money. Either would be soft for the middleweight champion. This attempt to gain publicity at the expense of a man who is tied hand and foot by the boxing commissions is sickening.

Now in regards to their claims to a chance at Mickey Walker.

Eddie Shevlin

Eddie Shevlin holds a decision over both Ward and Shade. True, Shade also has won from Shevlin, but that should not place Shade closer to a match with Walker than it would Shevlin.

Pete Latzo and Shade also claim wins over Ward and that should eliminate Ward. Shevlin has defeated Latzo and that should compel Latzo to erase that verdict before he could go any higher.

Shevlin Puts It Right Up to Shade for Bout

How about Dave Shade showing that he is the most logical welterweight to battle Walker without challenging a man in a heavier class? He can get all the battling right in the welterweight class without leaving the welters, and furthermore without going outside of Boston.

Shevlin has defeated Shade and did not refuse the New York man an opportunity to show he could do better on a second trial.

That was no more than fair and that is all I ask of Shade for Shevlin. Both Eddie and myself feel that Shevlin can surely defeat Shade, and as the Dartmouth professor has always been willing to give a defeated man a chance to show he can do better on another trial, I am challenging Shade to settle conclusively that he is more entitled to a match with Walker than he is. Let's settle this thing among welters before either Shade or Ward start to challenge Wilson.

Shevlin is willing to meet Shade either in Boston or New York but he refuses to be a party to any cheap scheme to embarrass the middleweight champion. Wilson can take good care of all the middleweights and as it has often been proved that a good big man can defeat a good little man he would have little to worry about with Shade.

Sears Called Upon to Post Forefit

If Shade refuses to meet Shevlin the Roxbury boy will meet any man that local promoters pick for him, and as the manager of Al Sears of East Boston appears to be serious in his claim of a match for the New England title all I ask him to do is post a forfeit that Sears will enter the ring as a welterweight and the match can go to the club making the best offer.

Naturally Walker is the man Shevlin is desirous of meeting, but will again meet Shade, this time in a rubber battle to settle once and for all the man with the best chance to win the title.

Agco Five Wants Games

The American Glue Company basketball team, Boston City League champions, want games with any fast semi-pro or professional teams in the State. The Agco five average 160 pounds.

FIGHT FANS FOR SHADE OVER WARD

There is only one professional boxing show in this city this week. It will be held tomorrow night and the Arena A. C. will conduct it. The fights will be held at Mechanics Hall.

Dave Shade and George Ward will be the principals. Of course it will be a ten-round battle, for all professional main bouts in this State are now booked for that distance.

Shade is a decided favorite but the mill should provide a real fight. Ward has asserted all along that he is David's master, but Shade, whose victory over Eddie Shevlin gave him much prestige, is just as sanguine that he will have the award when the boxers are finally ordered to their corners Tuesday night.

Both are contenders for the welterweight title now held by His Highness Mickey Walker. Of course, Shevlin is also an aspirant for the championship, but as Ward and Shade will fight Tuesday they are more in the calcium light just now than the professor of the manly art of self-defence at Dartmouth College is.

In a way this contest may be regarded as another elimination, just as the Shade setto with Shevlin was considered. Shade defeated Shevlin, and if he can pull down the curtain on Ward he will be one step nearer to a battle for the laurel now worn by Michael Walker.

Shade is fast and clever, and so by the same token is his antagonist.

There are three preliminaries on the bill. Lew Paluso is carded with Newport Johnny Brown. The last named is no relation of the famous abolitionist and so may be expected to show no signs of pacifism in the roped arena. Tom Corbiery and Young Tansey and Connors and P. De Salvo will be the other belligerents.

RED BARRON NOW IN BASKETBALL

Red Barron, whose career as a college football star came to a close when he graduated from Georgia Tech a short time ago, has stepped forward in a new athletic light. Barron has organized a basketball quintet from among members of the Baptist Tabernacle Sunday school class of Atlanta, under the name of Agoga five, and with the irresistible "Red" at the helm the Sunday school boys have chalked up many a victory.

ROGER HARRIS NOW STUDENT AT BROWN

Report has it that Roger Harris, star Dartmouth halfback last Fall, who recently was "busted out" of Hanover by reason of alleged scholastic failures, has transferred to Brown University.

Dartmouth men regret his loss and Brown men welcome his advent, although the installation at Brown of the one-year rule will prevent him from representing Brown in track and football until next year.

McDermott, a guard on the Brown team last year, and leading candidate for the varsity line next Fall, is another former Dartmouth player who switched to the Providence college.

Fight at Laconia Tonight

Boxing will be resumed in Laconia, N. H., tonight, when Gunboat Jack of Lawrence and Frankie Buff of Holyoke meet.

BUSINESS NOTICE

HARVARD PLAYS TIGERS IN DECISIVE GAME

Harvard figures in two of its most important hockey games this week. The third and deciding game of the series with Princeton will be played on Wednesday and the annual game with Yale will be played on Saturday. These "Big Three" games will be played at the Arena and Boston hockey fans may congratulate themselves that the wide awake manager of the Arena, George V. Brown, obtained the rubber Crimson-Tiger battle for this city. The tilt in which Georgs Owen and team mates will play against the sons of Eli on Saturday is one of the hockey season's blue ribbon events.

The week's schedule of games for the St. Botolph street rink is most attractive, for in addition to the two big college contests the Ice Palace has the crack Boston College sextet billed against the classy B. A. A. aggregation. They will play on Thursday night.

That is serving up a savory dish for the hockey fans.

Although the Crimson won the match Saturday and tied up the series, reports seem to indicate that the Orange and Black outplayed the Crimson. In the game here against Harvard, Princeton looked like a very strong aggregation.

Can Depend on Crimson To Play Good Hockey

Harvard can be depended upon to play good hockey. Crimson teams have a faculty of rising to the occasion in vital matches. A win for Harvard would put the team right on edge for the return game with Yale. Harvard beat Yale in an overtime game and should take the Elis in regulation periods. The Yale team has some first class material this year, with Captain Bulkley in the forward line and Charlie O'Hearn in defence.

Boston College is right on edge for the game with the B. A. A. Thursday night. The Eagles have played the most consistent good hockey of any college team in the country. The fact that the Unicorn enters the game with a more experienced lot of players does not feaze the Maroon and Gold in the least. The victories over McGill and Queen's were indications of B. C.'s class.

Boston College Has Won 13 in a Row

Boston College has won thirteen games in a row, while B. A. A. lost its first game of the season Saturday night against the Arna Lees.

It looks good for a game between the Victorias and Duluth, March 6, but Manager Brown hasn't closed. The Vics are none too eager to tackle Duluth two nights before the second league game with the B. A. A. Should the Unicorn fall before New Haven Saturday night this would make the B. A. A.'s clash the vital game of the Eastern series. Boston College may be sent against Duluth in the second game here.

DILBOY POST HAS SHOW THURSDAY

With the approach of the New England and National Amateur Championships, the amateurs are anxious to get in condition, and with that in view the entry list for the tournament under the auspices of the George Dilboy Post, V. F. W., on Thursday evening contains the names of the top-notchers in the classes, 112, 118, 126, 135 and 175 pounds. Practically all of the winners of the recent Trimount City bouts held in Mechanics Hall will be present. Win Anderson, of North Easton, who holds two decisions over Johnnie Andreasano, of East Boston, will make his debut in the interest of Dilboy Post.

ENGLISH HIGH AND BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH STARS TO CLASH

SCHOOLBOY ATHLETES IN TWO DAY MEET

By FRED C. LANE.

Boston College High and Boston English will stage a dual meet. The field events will be held at the B. C. High gymnasium today and the track events will take place at the East Armory tomorrow.

But for the spurt that the Maroon and Gold team made in the past two months English High would be a big favorite. It looks like an even thing.

Boston College High is looking forward to winning first place in the high jump and shot put. "Dinny" Welch is jumping in his best form now. Art Woodley has won many points for his team in the shot.

Judging from the past performances of both schools in the field events there is doubt that English can win a first place.

It is in the running events that the Blue and Blue has hope, but B. C. High is not without sufficient talent to give their opponents a real fight in the sprints. After the spectacular manner in which B. C. High triumphed over Dorchester, it can be safely said they will make a formidable foe for English.

District Schools Will Have Their Own Session

Just as a matter of conditioning for the regimental games that come in three weeks the district high schools will have a session all their own at the East Armory this week. Hyde Park, Trade and South Boston will have a triangular competition. The field events will be held tomorrow at the South Boston gym. The running events will take place at the East Armory Wednesday.

Hyde Park is the class of the district high schools this year and will walk away with the meet. Not only has Coach Daly built up a strong intermediate and junior division, but has rounded out a senior class that is the best to ever represent that school.

Haggerty and Hunt Are Big Losses

The loss of "Red" Haggerty and Charlie Hunt to the Latin track squad caused big rents to be made in the sails of the Purple and White ship. Haggerty was a record holder in the 600-yard run and Hunt was at his best running the 300.

For Coach Ed Fitzgerald to fill their shoes this year is almost impossible. The prospects for a strong senior division next year are bright, for several of the intermediates that step up the notch have ability.

Look for New Records at Regimentals

Close followers of track are looking forward to a new set of records being made at the Regimentals. Although the Prep schools to this annual affair will offer plenty of competition for the fans.

Worcester Academy, Exeter, Andover, and Huntington have sent entries for the meet, which promises to surpass anything in other years.

Dorchester High's hockey team will be called upon to defend its standing in the City Hockey League again on Saturday against Commerce High. It is the second stiff assignment that Dorchester has in two weeks. Unless they show better form in this game than they did against English High, they will be ousted from first place in the standing. A game with Boston College High is in order the following week.

Galaxy of Stars at Massachusetts Meet

When McKillop established a new schoolboy record at the Legion games he was hard pressed by Byron McDermott, formerly of West Roxbury, and now of B. C. High. McDermott stands out as the only lad that can give the English High boy a battle, but he will not compete in the Regimentals.

The Massachusetts High Athletic Association track games at the East Armory on Saturday will have a galaxy of scholastic stars. The addition of the Prep schools to this annual affair will offer plenty of competition for the fans.

Worcester Academy, Exeter, Andover, and Huntington have sent entries for the meet, which promises to surpass anything in other years.

Tom Keady Will Be Football Coach at Columbia

Columbia University has found the solution of its football coaching problem in Tom Keady, according to a story that was circulating among the college men at the Harvard-Cornell-Dartmouth meet in Mechanics Building.

This story had it that Tom and the Columbia authorities virtually have come to an agreement and that the former Dartmouth star and Lehigh and Vermont coach would assume "Buck" O'Neil's place next Fall.

Keady is a remarkably able coach and in the opinion of many is just the man Columbia needs to put it back on the football map. Tom will be stationed in New York shortly when he takes up his duties as baseball coach for Fordham.

OREGON GIANT NEW STAR ON BOXING HORIZON

By DAMON RUNYON.

New York, Feb. 26.—"The bigger they are the harder they fall," said someone—not Bob Fitzsimmons—many years ago. Although Fitzsimmons has been credited with authorship of the remark.

That being true, Jack Horner, called "the Oregon giant," a recent pugilistic discovery of the Northwest, ought to fall harder than any man in the modern history of the ring.

Horner is the biggest pugilist since the days of Freeman, the American giant discovered by Ben Caunt, the old English champion, on his visit to this country long, long ago.

Freeman was so big Caunt didn't want to fight him himself, so he took Freeman back to England with him and advertised him as the American champion.

Caunt and Freeman barnstormed England in exhibitions. Then Freeman fought and won a couple of battles and finally died of tuberculosis. Freeman was the biggest man that ever turned his hand to professional boxing.

This Jack Horner dug up by Fred Winsor, a veteran carpet bagger of Pistica, who once managed Jack Dempsey for a very short time, is 6 feet 6½ inches tall and weighs 246 pounds. He is a half inch taller than Willard and weighs more.

Horner is twenty-two and was discovered by Winsor somewhere in Oregon. He has had little ring experience, but his size is getting him a lot of publicity in the Northwest. Willard had nothing more than size to commend him when he became a fighter. Before Willard's time boxing experts would have said immediately of Horner, "He is too big."

Since Willard, however, experts have admit that extreme size is not necessarily an insurmountable barrier, that even extreme youth is not required.

TENNIS COURTS IN PARKS ON BIG BOOM

New York, Feb. 26.—The plans of President Dwight F. Davis of the United States Tennis Association for a great development of tennis in municipal parks throughout the country are meeting a widespread response. The idea is for more and better courts in the public parks and local, interscholastic and a national championship for the players in this phase of the game.

Dwight F. Davis

When President Davis was park commissioner of St. Louis he did big things in developing tennis in the parks there, and the success attending his effort made him ambitious in a national way.

On becoming president of the national organization a month ago he expressed himself as being particularly interested in municipal tennis, and at once began the task of development on a large scale.

According to statistics now has, he has a fine framework to enlarge on.

In seventy-five cities of the country last year, 375 parks and playgrounds contained more than 2,000 courts, and in forty-two of the cities a total of 1,785,711 persons used the courts.

In thirty-six cities local championships were conducted with 220,000 contestants.

WEISSMULLER TO DEFEND TITLE

The Brookline Swimming Club announces that the date of the national senior 100-yard free style swimming championship had been changed from March 8 to March 7. The change was made necessary, it was explained, to permit John Weissmuller of Chicago, the champion, to defend his title, and to compete at Pittsburgh on March 9 in the senior 220-yard championship event.

GETAWAY DAY FOR NEW YORK GIANTS

New York, Feb. 26 (By International News Service).—The vanguard of New York Giants, composed of Frank Frisch, star second baseman, and Fred Maguire and "Waddy" McPhee, recruit infielders, will leave here today for the training camp at San Antonio, where they will be joined by the players who have been working out at Marlin, Texas, and others who are going to the camp from their homes. Maguire and McPhee are collegians, the former hailing from Holy Cross and the latter from Princeton.

DEXTER DIPPY OVER SCHOOL FIVE WINS

Dexter, Me., Feb. 26.—The entire town has gone "dippy" over the success of the local high school basketball team's string of victories. Representative business men are in conference with the Maine Central Railroad to arrange for a special train on March 3 when the team will play the Bangor High School. Over 1,000 have announced that they will attend the game.

Will Play Wednesday

The Lexington High School girls' basketball team will play Swampscott, Wednesday afternoon.

INTERNATIONAL POLITICS

WE have the best reasons for stating that an alliance between U. S. and France is about to be consummated. We wondered a bit at the freedom with which the better and better bird, yclept Emile, roamed our country and took in all the sights and all our cash.

We now understand that he came at the invitation of the scientists who makes the White House white, W. G. Harding. The President had taken a correspondence course with Coue by radio and it struck him as such good stuff that a deal was arranged. Coue came over, a la Harry Nawn, to pave the way. He sowed the seeds, to mix metaphors a bit, of this mental attitude and supremacy of mind over matter business. Then when the ground was fallow, the Hon. Pres. advanced with his psychological propaganda, the only flaw being that New Englanders did not fall with the readiness which he had imagined. The theory's fine for prickly heat, and things like that, but it goes sour when tried on the empty coal bin, or the aching tooth. Possibly the Pres., Mons. Coue and the Coal Barons are in an international trust backed by some master mind like Fenal or any of our recently retired bank presidents. We are following the situation closely and will report further at an early date.

ONE thing is certain. If our Chief Executive runs again, his New England plurality will be purely psychological.

TO MY CREDITORS.

GENTLEMEN, et al.—Please stop sending monthly bills. I owe you nothing whatsoever. Your books and figures are purely imaginative. Thinking that I owe you money is a psychological condition on your part. I am convinced that you have become unduly excited about a situation, which should occasion no worry whatever. If the situation wasn't annoying it would be positively ridiculous. Trusting this will relieve the tension and make you see things in the proper light, I remain,

MURPHY SETS RECORD IN 250 MILE AUTO RACE

By H. F. WELLER.

Los Angeles, Feb. 26.—Jimmy Murphy, champion race driver of 1922, began his campaign for the speed honors of 1923 auspiciously. He flashed across the finish line in the 250-mile classic in new record time at the head of a procession of racing stars, the like of which has never before been assembled together on a Pacific Coast track.

Murphy's time was 2 hours, 9 minutes, 43 3-5 seconds, or an average of 115.7 miles an hour. The previous record was 114.6 miles an hour.

Murphy drove a Durant Special.

Bennet Hill, in a McDonald Special, finished second; Ralph De Palma, Deusenberg Special, third; Eddie Hearne, Durant Special, fourth, and Frank Elliott, in a Leach Special, fifth.

Of the sixteen starters ten finished.

Murphy's ne wrecord is just a little more than one mile per hour faster than the mark he set on the same track on December 3. It was achieved only after the greatest battle for position that ever took place on any race course.

Jimmy Mur

The competition was keen from the start. Bennett Hill, who finished in second place, crossed the line less than five yards behind the champion in the same position he had occupied during the last quarter of the race.

KOTSONAROS ELIMINATION WITH POLK

The first step in the elimination contest in the light-heavyweight division will be the feature match at the Grand Opera House, Thursday night, when Joe Polk, the A. E. F. champion, meets George Kotsonaros, the Greek champion.

They are considered the best in the East of all light-heavyweights.

Polk has showed here on several occasions and proved to the fans that he is about the classiest grappler around 190 pounds on the mat. He plans to give Kotsonaros the surprise of his life.

The winner will go after John Pesek.

Two Betrothals Interest Boston Smart Set Members, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

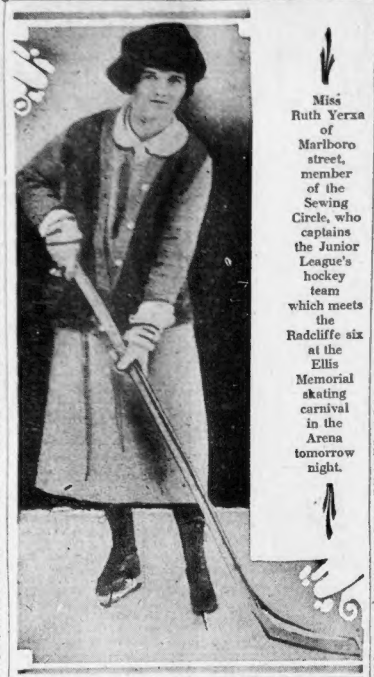
IT looks as though Miss Helen Bennett will remain away from her native city for a long, long time. The youngest of Stephen Bennett's popular daughters sailed on Saturday from New York with her brother-in-law and sister, the Tom Cottmans (Margaret Bennett). They were passengers on board the White Star liner Adriatic, bound for the much-favored Mediterranean cruise.

For the past Winter Miss Bennett, whose knack at impersonating "leading men" in the Vincent shows won no small renown for her, has been making her home in Baltimore with the Cottmans, leaders among the gay "younger-marrieds" of the Oriole City. I understand that when the trio return from their trip some time in April that Miss Bennett will return to Baltimore with Mr. and Mrs. Cottman.

All of which, of course, is quite a bit of a loss for the Vincent Club, for ever since Helen Bennett's debut some few years ago she has carried off stellar roles in the Vincent shows with noteworthy ease. Last Winter, if I recall correctly, she paid a more or less flying visit to Boston, during which she took part in Adelaide Whitman's clever operetta, "Why Not." Another sister is Mrs. Edward Cunningham (Elizabeth Bennett), who, with Mr. Cunningham, makes her home on Bridge street, Dedham. The former Elizabeth Bennett was president of the Vincent Club the year her engagement to Mr. Cunningham was announced.

THOSE who're going to attend the Ellis Memorial skating carnival at the Arena tomorrow night may be assured of a very snappy hockey game between the Junior League and the Radcliffe team—and that's only one of the many events on the carnival's program. Last year the fair Junior "leaguers" defeated their collegiate rivals, and now the latter are out to capture the scalps of their erstwhile victors.

Miss Ruth Yerxa of Marlboro street, captain of the Junior League team, is seen here practicing for the game. Miss Yerxa, a member of the 1920 Sewing Circle, is to be one of the many June brides. On the 14th of that month her marriage to Francis C. Welch will take place. Her engagement to Mr. Welch, son of Mrs. Francis Welch of Deerfield street, was announced only a short time ago.



Miss Ruth Yerxa of Marlboro street, member of the Sewing Circle, who captains the Junior League's hockey team which meets the Radcliffe six at the Ellis Memorial skating carnival in the Arena tomorrow night.

IF Mr. and Mrs. Percy D. Haughton should next season present the latter's very pretty daughter, Miss Vera Whistler Howell, she will be engaged before she's presented, for the Haughton's have just announced Miss Howell's engagement to George Richmond Fearing, 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Fearing (Hester Cochrane) of Beacon street.

Mrs. Haughton was formerly Miss Gwendolyn Whistler of Baltimore and a grandniece of the famous artist. She married Mr. Haughton several years after the death of her first husband, a well-known clergyman of New York. Her daughter, Miss Howell, is not only a clever equestrienne, but is of a most attractive appearance. She is a tall, slender girl, with light brown hair, gray-blue eyes and exceptionally lovely coloring. Mr. Fearing, her fiance, is a member of the Somerset and Tennis and Racquet Clubs.

ANOTHER interesting engagement recently announced is that of Miss Elizabeth Cole and Walter Amory, who's now at Harvard. Miss Cole was a debutante of 1921-22, and the betrothal was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Cole of Hingham. Mr. Amory is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Copley Amory—the former is a member of the Somerset Club here—now of New York.

HARDING PLANS TO STUMP FOR WORLD COURT

Washington, Feb. 26.—A resolution to carry out the new administration proposal for American membership in the International Court of Justice was introduced today by Senator King, Democrat, Utah. There was no discussion and it went over indefinitely.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, acting Democratic leader, said he had "a feeling of friendliness" for the plan, but that it indicated timidity on the part of the administration in its foreign politics.

Washington, Feb. 26.—President Harding plans to take two issues "to the people" between March and December if the now dying Sixty-seventh Congress fails to settle them.

One is the ship subsidy program, about to sink because the Senate insists upon talking, not voting, on it.

The other is that the United States shall adhere to the world court of Justice at The Hague, set up under the League of Nations, upon which it appeared unlikely today any definite action can be taken before the expiration of the present congress, six days hence.

A canvass of senatorial opinion of all shades today revealed the preponderant belief that neither measure can get anywhere before March 4.

President Harding was fully cognisant of this when he transmitted his special message on Saturday asking "advice and consent" for the United States to participate in The Hague Court, Administration spokesmen said today.

Haging been in the Senate himself and opposed to the League, the President realized protracted debate would be necessary before the sanction could be obtained. He nevertheless desired to get the proposition on record before the country so public opinion would have ample time to crystallize while Congress is at home and the new Senate coming in will be prepared to cast a decisive vote one way or the other.

FRIEND OF IRISH REPUBLIC HELD IN ARMS PLOT

New York, Feb. 26.—Ownership and the intended destination of the store of arms and ammunition found in a West Twenty-fourth street basement Saturday apparently were unknown to police and government agents working on the case today.

The authorities claimed to have traced the cartridges, machine guns and grenades as the property of Arthur Loewinger, proprietor of a seaman's supply store in Hoboken, N. J. Loewinger, however, denied ownership of the contraband.

Joseph O'Byrne, rooming house owner at the address where the munitions were located, is still under arrest with Edward Roey, driver of the truck which brought a consignment of cartridges to the cache. They are held in $2,500 each.

O'Byrne, according to reports, admitted he was a member of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic, but denied any knowledge of the proposed destination of the arms. He said Loewinger had leased the place from him several months ago, declaring he possessed necessary State licenses for the possession of munitions. The police said O'Byrne told them Loewinger had selected his place for storage, as it was near the waterfront and could be used for shipments

GANNA WALSKA RAPPED BY CRITICS

For the eyes—great.

For the ears—not so good.

That, in essence, is the opinion of Boston music critics concerning the debut in this city of Ganna Walska as a lyric soprano.

Olin Downes, critic of the Boston Post, had this to say of her concert last night in Symphony Hall:

"Madame Ganna Walska has the laudable ambition to sing, but she cannot. Take 50 per cent. of badness off for nervousness, it still remains that her performance was anything but convincing from the standpoint of art.

"The tone was shrill and unmusical. It lacked true resonance or carrying power. Mme. Walska has no reason, as her vocal equipment is at this time, to sing. It is doubtful if the voice could ever be developed in a way to be beautiful or appealing.

POOR JUDGMENT.

"For the rest, she appeared as a strikingly beautiful woman . . ."

The Herald critic wrote:

"Mme. Walska's performance showed poor judgment in essaying a program so exacting. In the middle of her voice she has a few notes of pleasant quality. Until she has succeeded, by well-directed and diligent study, in adding more, she is unwise to sing in public."

The Globe said:

"Mme. Walska manages to conceal most of her vocal resources from the public. Yesterday's recital was, to be frank, a failure. With unlimited money at her command it is curious that she should not have procured wiser advice from vocal experts than she seemingly followed.

HAS LITTLE VOICE.

"Mme. Walska's throat was obviously constricted from nervousness, which had a great deal to do with the deviations from pitch and the unpleasant quality of tone she produced.

"Her dressmaker served her better. . . . Her beauty, her personal charm, her taste, and her apparent sound though wrongly trained musical intelligence, supplement Mme. Walska's voice."

Zoe Pahee, in The American:

"Mme. Walska has little if any voice to begin with, indifferent application to that and a confidence that songs sung any way as long as sung at all, will do."

Mme. Walska continued her concert tour to Greenville, S. C., today. Before leaving her home in New York this morning, she expressed herself as happier and more enthusiastic than ever over her operatic future.

The critics who disliked her voice made no impression on Mme Walska's merry mood and determined ambition.

"What care I?" she said. "There are thousands who want to hear me sing—and they will judge me. I start on the second part of my tour with more enthusiasm than ever."

LIGHTHOUSE KEEPERS SAVED IN ICE

"Rotten" Railroad Service Is Attacked

PHELAN DUE IN BERMUDA TODAY

JAMES J. PHELAN

The State fuel director does not appear at all pleased that his fame as a coal getter follows him on pleasure trips to warm climes. Mr. Phelan was photographed as he left New York for Bermuda, where he is today. After a few days' basking in the natural heat of the island he will return to his statistics in the State House.

SNATCHED FROM ICY DEATH

Lighthouse Keepers Saved in Nantucket Sound by Coast Guard Crew

Hyannis, Feb. 26.—M. D. King, keeper of the lighthouse on Bishops and Clarks' ledge, and F. B. Grassie, assistant keeper, owe their lives to the heroism of Captain Long and the crew of Chatham coastguard station.

The lighthouse men, trapped in ice flows off Nantucket sound for twenty-four hours in an open boat, were rescued just in time by the coastguard crew while spectators watched anxiously from shore.

King and Grassie left the lighthouse in a dory on a trip to the mainland for supplies. The five-mile trip took two hours as the dory had to be threaded through channels constantly shifting in the moving ice floes of the sound.

After loading their little boat they started back.

But the tricky tides of the sound, which usually serve to keep the floating ice from packing, caused a jam when the two men had rowed about half the distance back.

MAROONED ALL NIGHT.

In an effort to get around the ice they headed toward Hyannis. But every channel was blocked.

Darkness came on and the ice gradually closed in. Then snow fell. They burrowed down into their supplies and huddled there through the rest of the night.

At daybreak, suffering from cold and exposure, they renewed their fight for life. They tried to pole their way along, by pushing with oars against the ice floes. The exercise kept their blood circulating, but they made no headway.

Dennis townsfolks saw them and tried to get through in a boat, but were unable to make it.

Then word was sent to the coastguard station at Chatham. Captain Long and his crew launched a big motor and started to battle a way through the drifting floes.

The guardsmen had a hard tussle but they got there. King and Grassie were brought to shore. Although suffering from exposure they were reported today as recovering from their perilous night.

20 NORMAL SCHOOL STUDENTS ICEBOUND

Bridgewater, Feb. 26—When State Normal School resumes sessions today after a week's vacation, it was found twenty students from Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard were not on hand, having been icebound in their island homes by the cold spell of the past week.

SHOWERED GIRL IN LOVE SUIT WITH GEMS

"Jim said it with jewelry."

Comely Grace Hedges of No. 4 Maple street, Natick, admitted it in Middlesex court, East Cambridge, today.

James Healey, chauffeur, grinned when she said it, for James is suing Grace for $3,000 for breach of promise.

Jim, according to Grace's story, handed her three diamond rings set in platinum, diamond studded wrist watch, diamond earrings and a diamond pin.

It appears that Jim would blithely go to the jewelry store every time they made up after a spat and buy a peace offering.

A Mr. Coy thought well of Grace and often called around to chat awhile in the evening. Jim did not like Coy at all. So he said:

"It's either me or Coy."

Grace considered and then told Coy to grab the atmosphere, which he promptly did. Jim, flushed with his victory over his rival, stepped to a jewelry store and he said it then with jewelry. He peeled off $125 for the ring he gave her then.

All this Grace told today. She even told how they first saw each other on a train and how Jim had sent a friend to find a friend to introduce him to her.

Then came her father, John Hedges. He admitted that Jim had purchased an automobile for the Hedges to ride around in. He described how he had told Healey that he better look for "some other nice girl."

STAR THREATENS TO STARTLE TOWN

Vivian Martin, comely stage star, has threatened to startle Boston, and when Viv threatens——

No one, not even Lynn Overman, her leading man, knows just how she's going to startle said city, but anyway its coming Thursday afternoon at the Boston Press Club show at the Colonial theatre.

Miss Martin heard the news writers were going to have a frolic and she grew right peeved because she figured she had not been invited. The committee was on the way to see her.

When she was asked to grace the bill she cut loose pretty to do the act but she promised to surprise the town. So that's that.

MOTHER LEAPS TO DEATH WITH BABIES

New York, Feb. 26.—Crazed by fear when a fire started in the cellar of the tenement, No. 747 Tenth avenue, Mrs. Anna Healy early today hurled her two babies from the window of her apartment and then jumped to death herself.

The Healys lived on the third floor of the tenement house.

The babies were twins. One of them, Marian, was killed. The other is expected to die. The twins were ten months old.

SACCO ON 11TH DAY OF HUNGER STRIKE

Nicola Sacco, convicted murderer, has completed the tenth day of his hunger strike in the Dedham jail. No change was noticed in his condition.

WHITE GIRL 'RIVAL' OF DARK WIFE

Colored Woman Says Husband's Love Was Won by Fair Competitor

Mrs. Ralph C. Randolph, colored, of No. 86 Harold street, Roxbury, charged today that a white woman living on Commonwealth avenue had stolen her husband's affections. She announced she would file a suit.

Mrs. Randolph appeared in Roxbury Court with a story of abuse and neglect. Her husband was ordered to pay her $22 a week for the support of herself and three children.

Randolph, Mrs. Randolph says, had a winning way with the women and was especially polite to the wealthy ones. She thinks he met his affinity in a bank.

The cooling affections of her husband and his absence from home puzzled Mrs. Randolph, she said. Then came an awakening. A furniture bill fell from his pocket to the floor. An electric light bill was with it. The other woman's name was on both.

For four weeks, Mrs. Randolph says, she did not collect from her husband and all that she and her trio of children had to live on was $20. She says he beat her when she demanded that he give up his white sweetheart.

She is reported as the daughter of a wealthy Vermont man whose family connections are said to be among the best of that State.

JUDGE POSTPONES INTER-CITY CASE

Judge McLaughlin in Superior Court today, heard a motion of shareholders of the Inter-City Trust to enjoin Frank E. Sweetser of Brookline from disposing of the Blake Park Realty Trust, which owns land in Brookline said to be worth $400,000. The land was conveyed to Sweetser in Sept., 1919, by the trustees of the Inter-City Trust, and the shareholders of the latter are contemplating proceedings to reach that property. Judge McLaughlin postponed the case until Friday, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the Blake Park Realty Trust figures in the pending bankruptcy petition.

WAH JAILED IN DRUG CASE; WIFE SET FREE

Helen Goon, white wife of Lee Goon Wah, was discharged by Judge Thomas H. Dowd in Municipal Court today, when arraigned on a charge of being present where narcotic drugs were found. Judge Dowd ruled her husband's home was her place of residence, even though it might be a den of iniquity. Lee Goon Wah was found guilty of possessing drugs and was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. Judge Dowd refused to impose a fine, on account of the man's previous drug record.

MANY FLEE FIRE IN DORCHESTER HOUSE

Several men, women and children fled to the street from fire and smoke today in the three-story brick dwelling at No. 125 Norfolk street, Dorchester. This fire started, police reported, when an oil heater overturned in the top-floor apartment occupied by Isaac Breckman and family. No one was hurt in the rush from the building. Tenants soon returned. Damage was estimated at $350.

AIRCRAFT TO TEST NEW YORK'S DEFENCE

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Feb. 28.—Manoeuvres to determine just what anti-aircraft protection New York city would require in case of a hostile attack by an air fleet are to be held next Summer The effectiveness of anti-aircraft guns against airplanes will be determined on a scale never before attempted in this country, the announcement said.

SEARCHED FOR A FIRE IN SCHOOLHOUSE

YOUTHFUL "FIREMEN"

Led by Miss Lena L. Carpenter (in circle), principal of the Margaret Fuller Primary School in Jamaica Plain, today, 300 pupils formed squads and traced a fire in the basement of the building. They also gave the alarm and acted in a highly disciplined manner.

POISON BOOZE KILLS 3; TEN STRICKEN ILL

Poisonous liquor killed three more men in Boston and sent ten others to the City Hospital within the last twenty-four hours. Two of the dead succumbed at the City Hospital, where they were removed by the police, while the third was found dead in a rooming house by the watchman.

The dead are: William Parker, forty-five years old, single, of the Union House, No. 1,051 Washington street, South End; John McCabe, forty-nine years old, of No. 8 Brighton street, Charlestown; John Bowen, fifty-three years old, of No. 35 Charles street, Dorchester.

20
Deaths from moonshine in this State from January 1.

Parker was found dead in his room at the Union House by the watchman, Michael McElwary.

McCabe was removed to the hospital after he had been picked up unconscious by the police on a South End street. Death, physicians said, was due to acute alcoholism.

Bowen was picked up by the police after he had collapsed in a doorway on Washington street, South End. He died at the hospital of acute alcoholism.

Anthony Sampson, thirty-eight years old, of No. 112 Silver street, South Boston, was removed to the City Hospital after he had been clubbed into unconsciousness by a policeman. Sampson, said to have been maddened by liquor, was resisting arrest for drunkenness at C and Fourth streets, South Boston.

PUPILS TRACE SCHOOL FIRE, GIVE ALARM

A school principal and 300 pupils went fire-hunting when school opened today at the Margaret Fuller primary school in Glen Road, Jamaica Plain, and bagged a blaze.

The principal, Miss Lena L. Carpenter, smelled smoke when she arrived in her office, but could see none. She ran into the classes, organized the children, posted monitors to see that no other children got in and then organized squads to go find the fire.

The children fell into the spirit of the thing admirably, and without panic began to look around the building and finally tracked the blaze to its lair in the boiler room. In the meantime a proud squad had attended to the sending of an alarm. The firemen quickly put out the fire. Enthusiasm was high and damage slight.

AGED WOMAN DIES IN NEWPORT FIRE

Newport, R. I., Feb. 26.—Miss Caroline W. Ennis, eighty-six years old, sister of Brigadier-General William Ennis, U. S. A., retired, and a member of an old Newport family, was fatally burned at her home on Church street today. The fire started in a couch in the kitchen and Miss Ennis was just alive when found, having been badly burned about the head and legs.

She died on the way to the hospital, She lived alone in the lower part of the house. Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Thrasher, also old people and the latter ill, who occupied the upper part of the house, were taken out partially overcome by the smoke, to a neighbor's house.

MANAGERS OF ROADS BLAMED

Huge Crowd Overflows State House Auditorium When Hearing Is Started

The conference room of the Department of Public Utilities was not large enough to accommodate the people who appeared today for a public hearing on the causes of bad passenger service in Massachusetts.

The hearing was held as the result of an order of the Legislature on January 24.

With interested people stretching into the corridors, it was decided to move to an auditorium in the basement, with larger capacity. That, too, was rapidly filled with folks who want to know why the train service is so bad.

And that's how it was characterized—bad. One speaker made no bones about it and called the service rotten. And the conditions, the speakers said, were not due to labor troubles, or to rolling stock, or to weather. Rotten mismanagement was held to blame.

BLAMES MANAGEMENT.

Henry C. Atwill, chairman of the commission, presided.

The first speaker was Representative Andrew P. Doyle of New Bedford who introduced the order into the House calling for the investigation and public hearing.

"It's all the fault of the operating management," Doyle said. "It's not the weather or the strike. Conditions have become so bad that a train on time, coming or going, is a signal for boisterous rejoicing.

"There is infernally bad passenger service on the New Haven and the Boston & Maine roads. If this commission takes any action, it will find the House and Senate in a most sympathetic frame of mind to apply corrective measures."

Representative Soule of New Bedford said:

"NOBODY'S BUSINESS."

"One out of five locomotives used by the New England roads breaks down before train starting time. This is an intolerable situation, and the roads have apparently not seen fit to delegate anybody to take care of it. It seems to be nobody's business. The unfitness of equipment extends even to the bellropes.

"The bellropes are of inferior grade. When engine workers ask for bolts they don't get them. Their morale is shot to pieces. This is reflected in their personal appearance. There was a time when they used to be epic and span. Now they're shabby."

Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan, representing the Mayor of Lowell, said:

"The Lowell trains come in from half an hour to seven hours late. There's no doubt that the reason for this is bad management."

STARTED ON TIME.

Representative Francis B. Cassidy of Worcester said:

"The service is worse than it was during the war or before the war. A train out of Worcester left on time the other day—the first one in four weeks—and the passengers gave three cheers. But the train, in its seventy-mile run to Webster, was late thirty-five minutes.

"The service is rotten, the lights in the trains are bad, there is no heat; and it's all due to bad management."

HUB GUARDSMAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Clifford J. O'Banion, eighteen years old, of No. 17 Fagan street, South End, was accidentally shot in the leg while at target practice in the South Armory by another member of the National Guard. He was removed to the City Hospital, where the bullet was removed.

MAIL TRAIN ROBBED OF THOUSANDS

Registered Sacks on Syracuse-Albany Train Are Rifled by Thief

New York, Feb. 26.— Theft of thousands of dollars in registered mail from a New York Central train between Syracuse and Albany several days ago was reported by authoritative sources today.

The robbery, it was said, was similar to that in Grand Central Terminal.

The robber, it was said, evidently worked at leisure in the registered mail, rifling the packages and casting the wrappers out of the window.

Later, trackwalkers found wrappers strewn along the right-of-way, many of which it was said, bore European addresses. The robbed train was east bound. Postal inspectors investigating the theft refused to comment.

The similarity of this robbery and the one executed yesterday in Grand Central Terminal, when the Chicago fast mail train, composed of ten steel cars, was looted, led to the belief that both were committed by the same ring of bandits.

Federal officials declared they believed the thefts were the work of a band of mail thieves organized in Chicago and that they expected to make arrests within a short time.

Postal inspectors and railroad police today declared that the robbery on the Chicago train by a lone bandit was the third robbery on the same train within two months. The bandit is still at large.

The police scoffed at the theory that the robbery was an "inside job," declaring the robber boarded the train up-State and made his way into one of the steel mail cars before reaching Grand Central station.

The bandit got one registered package. He dropped a second package in his flight.

SEEK MAN IN MURDER OF GUIDE

Hint Love Affair Prompted the Crime of Which Maine Woman Is Accused

Farmington, Me., Feb. 26.—While attorneys, witnesses and spectators are gathering for the trial of Mrs. Ethel Bean, accused of shooting her husband to death, detectives are running to earth eleventh-hour information that may change the complexion of the case.

The authorities today admitted they may make another arrest. They are looking for a man supposed to have been friendly with Mrs. Bean.

Discovery of this man may answer the question that has agitated all Maine, namely, if Mrs. Bean did kill her husband, what was the motive?

The existence of a $3000 life insurance policy is not believed to have prompted any one to lie in wait for Otis Bean and fire three bullets into his body.

A secret love affair may have been the cause of the murder, Attorney-General Ransford W. Shaw hints, and his opinion is echoed by County Attorney C. C. Holman.

The town is crowded for the trial.

On the night of October 6 last Otis Bean, 37, was shot to death before Hunter's garage here. A few hours later Norman Mawson of Methuen, Mass., and Jeremiah Wheaton of Elmira, N. Y., were arrested and charged with the crime.

A short while after Mrs. Bean was arrested and this caused a sensation. She has steadfastly maintained that she is innocent. However, the two men were released from the murder charge but are being held as material witnesses.

Attorney-General Shaw said today:

"I do not see how we can help but convict her. We have such a tremendous amount of evidence that it almost seems impossible for the jury to decide for her.

Mrs. Bean is equally as confident.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S TWO PAGES OF LAUGHTER

Remember the Time----

By Jack Casey

YER used to holler "Sheeny" at the rag man who came around in a rickety cart, drivin' a hayrack for a horse and sat half asleep, yellin' every once in a while, "Any-o-o-o rags, any-o-o-o bones, any-o-o-o bottles today." An' yer'd run out an' holler at him: "Hey, Ike, want any bones?" an' he'd stop his horse an' say, "Yes, go and get 'em, my little pal," an' yer'd run to the rags an' bones an' every rag you'd find in the house, an' he'd take 'em an' throw 'em in the cart an' then, it's startlin' to relize it, both hands

An' yer always saved up all the old rubbers in the house, an' old bottles an' newspapers, an' every rag man had a little hand scale that yer had to hang a ton on to register a pound. An' the day yer got eight cents for a lot of old bottles an' skipped to the store for candy an' next day yer Ma discovered her new rubber boots had vanished an' she blamed the rag man.

Yer'd go to a blacksmith shop an' get him to make yer a ring out of a horseshoe nail. Some fellers had red, white and blue paper wrapped around 'em for a handle an' came in little flat cardboard packages. Tradin' stamps first started and how yer used to marvel at the trading stamps premiums display window in town, which was always full o' china, mantel clocks, oak rockin' chairs, rugs, vases an' oil floor lamps. An' if yer came home after doin' an' errand for yer Ma an' forgot to get tradin' stamps with yer purchase she'd be terribly mad an' send yer back.

Somebody let a pole cat loose in the Academy o' Music on a night it was packed with "swells" from the hill, an' for weeks the newspapers an' detectives tried to find out who did it, but never did. No parade was complete without a drum major. An' the best in your town was "Vet" Anderson, a great big colored fellow. An' when "Vet" headed the parade all you kids used to march alongside of him an' imitate him doin' his stuff. An' after the parade yer'd all get broom sticks an' pretend yer was drum majors.

Yer used to have to wash the windows an' how yer hated it, but yer'd stand an' water a lawn for an hour. An' when yer did, how all the kids in the neighborhood would stand around in a circle an' dare yer to sprinkle 'em, an' when yer'd finally douse somebody good, they'd go home cryin' an' tell their Ma an' then she'd come over an' your Ma an' yer'd get a whippin'.

Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

WHEN he was young and full of mirth, Jim Johnson used to say: "The sober people own the earth, so I will not be gay. I'd love to sing and dance a bit and have my share of fun; but since that doesn't make a hit, the merry course I'll shun. I'd vastly rather laugh than frown, I'm really built for glee; but I'll be glum as Mr. Brown and get as rich as he!" Then, shedding gloom upon his trail, Jim Johnson started out, his scowl made merry people quail, and filled glad souls with doubt. But though he tried for years this way of being stern and cross, his ledger showed it did not pay, his business was a loss. While it was a distasteful task, he made a bitter fight, and bravely wore his grouchy mask, his looks as black as night. Then bills came in as thick as hail and cash was getting slim and so friend Johnson voiced a wail: "This sure looks bad for Jim! I'll have to take the bankrupt law, put business on the shelf' but still," he cried with loud guffaw, "at last I'll be myself! No more I'll wear a lengthy face and scare away the kids, but I shall go a merry pace and laugh when humor bids. This really isn't bad by half, ho-ho, ho-hum, he-he!' I haven't had a hearty laugh since nineteen hundred three!" Each day folks passing by his store heard Jimmy's joyful shout, and in a week or little more they bought him almost out. "We love to hear him laugh," they claimed, "we dote upon his grin," so now this Jolly Jim is famed for both his mirth and tin. Our moral's ample stuff and true; on this or any day if you will stick to being you, your cares will fade away!

WIVES—DON'T BE GROUCHY

In many homes where it is necessary for husbands to make business trips to other cities, wives complain and become grouchy because they are not taken along.

Sometimes it is convenient for a husband to take his wife with him on such trips—usually it is not.

On trips of this kind, it is necessary for a man to make every hour count; he makes no allowances for pleasure, he attends to his business and takes the first train home.

Some wives cannot understand this.

They think that with every business trip a man makes he manages to fit in a certain amount of pleasure. They resent not being allowed to enjoy this imaginary privilege.

A man on a business trip has much to think about on the way to his destination, much to study. A train ride affords him an opportunity to do this if he is not compelled to accede to the wishes and desires of some other person.

A man on business trips should have no demands on his time and attention except the business in hand.

JOHN, dear, just a moment, honey lamb;
I really ought to have two new hats and three
New frocks for Spring. I have nothing to
Wear, positively nothin', dear.
And Mrs. D.
Already has a complete wardrobe that's wonderful!
Now, honestly, dear, you wouldn't have your
Little wife look dowdy, would you?
O, yes, I forgot to mention that I shall need
Two new pairs of shoes and three of slippers
And some silk things and a few other little
Intimate garments that I won't mention
To go with the frocks and hats.
John, dear, you might add to the list just one
Pretty evening gown—The five I have now are
Absolutely in rags.
Yes, I realize that the coal bills have been
Frightful and that your suit is two years
Old, but you can wear it
Just a little longer—
Can't you, John, dear?

JOHN, dear, just a moment, honey lamb:
I really ought to have two new hats and three
New frocks for Spring. I have nothing to Wear, positively nothin', dear.
And Sire D
Already has a complete wardrobe
Isn't it wonderful!
Now, honestly, dear, you wouldn't have your
Little wife look dowdy, would you?
O, yes, I forgot to mention that I shall need
Two new pairs of shoes and three of slippers
And some silk things and a few other little
Intimate garments that I won't mention
To go with the frocks and hats.
John, dear, you might add to the list just one
Pretty evening gown—The five I have now are
Absolutely in rags.
Yes, I realize that the coal bills have been
Frightful and that your suit is two years
Old, but you can wear it
Just a little longer—
Can't you, John, dear?

THIS is the anniversary of the escape of Napoleon from Elba, in 1815. The ex-Emperor's return through France was a triumphant march. Soon he was again at the head of a formidable army.

What Is "A Mare's Nest?"

CERTAINLY "mare" in this case has nothing to do with the horse. It is a corruption of "mara," a malevolent demon who, according to tradition, possessed a nest filled with wonderful jewels and gold.

THE LAUGHING GIRL

How She Found Love and Deserved Her Name of "Radio Nan" as She Sent Out Waves of Sweetest Music

By A. M. Crawford.

WHEN Nan Ekel entered the big studio living room where her good friends were having fun, she seemed to purify the heated air as if a bit of fresh wind had blown through. In her black crepe dress and little fez hers drawn down over her blond curls, with only a string of pearls to relieve the sumbreness of her very best go-to-Sunday meeting costume, she made a picture that instantly charmed the artistic eye of Clarence Martin.

"HOLD THAT POSE, PLEASE!" HE CRIED.

Hold that pose, please!" he cried, springing up as he fumbled for his ever-ready notebook and pencil. "I want you just like that for the cover of a January magazine."

Nan laughed as she passed him and took a place on the big couch before the blazing hickory logs.

"No, no, my dear successful friend! I'm no model, and I won't be flattered into seeing my pretty nose ornamenting any news stand.

"You're much prettier than any model, he had said you know it," declared Rachel Gaines, passing a cup of tea to Nan. "And if anybody could get your spirit of perfect happiness, sympathy and tolerance in any publication—well, the subscription would have to be limited. A month would be too few to satisfy the demand."

"I'll change to tea said it!" agreed a young musician, running a caressing hand over the ivory keyboard of the piano. "I'm trying desperately to compose something that will be symbolic of you Nan. When I do—well I'll never have to patronize hot dog stands again."

Nan flushed with a grateful look. "Nice speech, that! Pay for that little supper I cooked for you last night."

It was a recognized fact among the group of artistic folk there that all the men were in love with Nan. Some of them had really "arrived" in their respective fields of endeavor.

Nan herself made a fairly comfortable living making place cards—for one but she was so clever that she was always busy. She was fortunate almost all that she earned. She was the very spirit of generosity, and the giving of her assistance and herself she seemed to have found true happiness. Most every Nan and everybody was glad to have a good time. Whenever one of her friends had a bit of bad luck or misfortune, it was always Nan who comforted or straightened the tangled threads of destiny. Rich people envied her constant happiness. Radio Nan, they called her lovingly.

"Are you ever sad, Nan? Don't things ever go wrong for you?" queried Kate Winters presently, turning to her.

What's the Use?

For just the fraction of a second there appeared to be a little wistful look in Nan's face. Peter McFarland, who did not belong on that couch, was sitting on the couch beside Nan and he looked at her intently when the question was put to her.

"What's the use?" she asked, parry ing the question.

The Peter Pirate pouch of that question rest: a little more he read in it. Nan and Peter had been sweethearts when she was a young girl and he a young man who had gone up a step ahead of Nan—a step he had not gained.

Peter really had a great gift for writing fiction. He had not realized it until Nan quite seriously pointed it out to him. In a sudden burst of ardor, he had dashed off a few stories which had been immediately accepted. "Because editors know that I own controlling interest in two newspapers and one writer chap likes to do a good turn for a buddy," he modestly declared. But his little spunk into creative work had most completely spoiled him for the old life.

So his surprise that afternoon, Nan accepted his invitation to drive her home. More times than he cared to remember, Nan had smilingly declined, walking away with some other chap because she did not want to accustom herself to luxuries, for luxuries had a way of fast becoming necessities, she said and the appearance of a Rolls Royce in their set was an event that would not soon be repeated.

Peter felt the usual flutter in the region of his heart as he settled himself beside her and took the wheel. "Mind if I spin up the drive before we turn in? It's the witching hour, you know, and although I've always been temperamental enough to like it, I'm willing to admit it's quite got me since I've known—you

Nan didn't laugh at that. She always laughed when he tried to say sweet nothings to her. He reached across her to tuck the warm robe around her. Glancing up, he saw something glimmering on Nan's cheek. A tear!

"Kate Winters asked you a question this afternoon and you didn't answer her? She asked if you were ever sad, if anything ever went wrong with you? Mind telling me—the truth?

A Little Sob

There was a little sob in Nan's velvety voice. "I've been silly enough to—to fall in love with a man who doesn't love me."

"I didn't know there was such a man," returned Peter gibly, almost too gibly. "Tell me about this inhuman monster. I'm bravely firm suffering fever."

Nan had apparently recovered herself. There's nothing to tell except that I—I've fought against it and fought and because I'm always laughed and been silly, my friends expect it—and—and they—call me Radio Nan and it will shock them so if I send out any—any waves of sadness—and I'm—I'm wanting just now to indulge my self a little—and cry a little—or a lot—"

That—from Nan! It was almost more than Peter could bear. And the idiotic chap didn't love her! Peter swerved his chair into imposing grounds, said under a porte cochere. A flash of light as doors miraculously opened and almost before she knew it, Nan was whisked into Peter's big house. He led her into a cosy little room where a flickering fire sent a rosy glow over the face of Peter's mother, sitting there quietly in the candle light. "Mother, here's Nan! She wants to have a good cry and I knew that this was a very good place for her to have it. Here with you." Then Peter closed the door and left them there.

Tears. Low, whispering voices. Soft laughter. Then Nan began opening the closed door. "I—I won't know what to say to him—when I see him——" she was saying, the old happiness thrilling in her voice.

Peter, just outside the door, was waiting for her. "What a funny little Nan, Nan?" he demanded.

"I won't answer when you call him names like that," said Radio Nan. Then—oh Peter darling!" (Did Peter's ears deceive him? Peter—your love!—about to be accepted—I'm bursting with happiness!)

And soon from Radio Nan there went out waves of sweetest music to every pair of wedding bells

When Betty's Ma Puts the Taboo On

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

DANNY calls on the telephone: "Is this where azure eyes lives? W-H-A-T? Oh, my goodness! Excuse me. Listen, Central—YOU know ME—give me the girl with the voice like slow-dripping honey." She'll talk to me. Hello—this is Danny—Danny the globe-trotter—the fat chap with an extra plate always laid for him at every table in the world (whether the cloth is red cotton or hand-woven damask)—the lovable fellow who tweaks your heart and thrills it, too—don't you KNOW—the fellow whose thin, sweet, piping calls all the world out of town and over the hills? DANI I want, please, to talk to Mademoiselle Betty. I'm lonely, alone."

Over the wires comes the measured voice of the maid "Mademoiselle says: 'I am not at home to you'"

And Danny squirms in rage, curling under his little toes and quirking up his big one, making his blonde curls to stand on end and shrieks: "Wh-a-t!"

And Danny licks a salty tear from his upper lip and tries again. But love is taboo, for Betty's ma has spoken—and in no uncertain terms—and she won't have her Betty encouraging this latest Billy. Ma has another in view and Betty must forego what her heart dictates—until Danny finds the way—as he always does.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

I SPOKE to cheer myself as much as for any other purpose. For the thought of Dick's sneaking off after Jim chilled me with terror. I couldn't shake from my mind the fact that Dick is a potential murderer. He tried to "get" my brother Neal. If he were to hatch such a scheme as Senor Ortiz and Rosa seemed to think this bringing of a double across Manuelo Ortiz' path indicated, it would be only because Dick was ready to shoot his last arrow. Divided between the fantastic absurdity of it and the terrors it made possible I turned to Rosa and asked desperately:

"DO YOU THINK SOMEONE AN IMPOSTER MAY BE IN DICK?"

"Do you think this Mateira person is friend or foe? Could he be fooled about Dick?"

"For why should an imposter say he is Dick?" Rosa shrewdly demanded.

"And why would young Pancho know how much it is we give to see again this Dick?" asked Manuelo Ortiz.

"Ah! You have ideas after all! You are not such a silly boy as I have thought!" cried Rosa, wrenching with the voice that has just lashed out so cruelly. "If this is something or nothing, we do not know. But this I know: I wi. give Jaime a warning. I must travel faster than one who goes by train. So I will make a telephone call to Ramon's agent at this office. I have a code ready for this, maybe I can reach Jaime. It may be that I shall have to send him only a message. But it will be the code. I am not afraid. Soon he will have it."

She spoke with an air of complete satisfaction. In all my life I have never felt more completely out of things — more helpless where Jim is concerned. Humiliated by the necessity, yet driven beyond any thought of my humiliation by my fears for Jim I cried:

"Mrs. Cordova, you won't let the probability that we are making up our fears out of whole cloth stop you from warning Jim, and at once, will you?"

Rosa Cordova turned on me a smile dazzling in its brilliancy and yet as cold and hard as steel.

"Trust me," she said slowly "Trust me to make sure—as sure as you would yourself make—that Jaime shall not have a hair of his head harmed."

Manuelo Ortiz laughed uneasily I found something in his mood transferring itself to mine. Rosa sat eye ng us both for a long moment. Then, with a note of asperity in her voice, she said:

"Nello, you do not think that Pancho is playing this little farce out just maybe for spite? Down in our country every one knows how big a knave is this West man. Pancho knows, too. Maybe he just amuses himself, makes—how you say?—practical joke. What you think, Nello?

"I think Miss Storrs, maybe can tell us something," suggested young Ortiz instantly. "We might go to the office of Senor Harrison and ask her. How is that? And if what she says shall not explain about Pancho and how well he knows Senor West, you can then telegrafo this agent of Ramon's in Texas he shall send the airplane over the border."

TELL THESE AT DINNER

A swamp-y piece of ground near an old farmhouse was a breeding place for mosquitoes. Some rough born who had learned of the crude oil treatment went to the farmer and tried to persuade him to exterminate the pests. "Exterminate 'em?" cried he. "Why the missin an' I just paid $15 for screening the side verandа. How are we goin to get any good out of it if we kill off the critters?"

A certain elementary school was visited one day by an important educational authority, who proceeded, as was his custom, to cross-examine the pupils.

Question after question he put to the boys. Time after time he received correct answers. He was delighted with the results.

"Well," said the visitor at last, "is there any boy here who would like to ask me something?

He looked about, and at last saw one small boy at the back with his hand up.

"Yes, my boy, what is it?" he asked, indulgently.

"Please, sir," came a tired voice, "what time does your train leave?"

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

AS children we were all told, doubtless, by patient teachers or parents, that "there is a right way to do everything." Perhaps this remark made little impression at the time, but most of us have learned through bitter experience that not only there is a right way to perform the most trivial act, but that the right way is the easiest because it is the natural way for the normal, well-balanced person.

Do you know how to seat yourself easily and gracefully in a chair? Or are you conscious that you take your seat awkwardly? Are you nervously conscious that you are moving unгracefully? If so, you may be glad to know the way you can do this easily and naturally. With a little practice you will do it right by "second nature" as they say, if indeed you are not now so well balanced and free from nervous strain that you are always instinctively graceful.

First, standing in front of the chair, place one foot slightly back of the other and lightly across the chair or very near it. Transfer the weight to this foot. Now let yourself sink into the chair with all the weight on the back foot and leg. Do this gradually smoothly, without jerking or for one instant losing control of the muscles of your legs and hips. The movement—when you have learned control of your muscles—will be as graceful and easy as a butterfly folding its wings.

When you wish to rise place your feet in the same position, the weight on the foot which is slightly under your chair. Now rise in exactly the way you have seated yourself. With all the weight on the leg nearest your chair, and with perfect control of all your muscles rise with a gentle, smooth movement. When you have risen, shift your weight easily to the forward foot if you wish to.

Suppose you wish to cross the room. You will find in every natural standing or walking posture that your weight is balanced between your two feet. Shift your weight to the foot further away from the point of your destination. Then with your first step you will start easily and lightly by the impelling of the weight forward from this foot, and you will find yourself started smoothly and gracefully on your way. For the rest, simply walk across the room quietly and naturally.

These directions may seem trivial, and they are; but just such trivialities go to make up the ensemble of grace and charm.

BRIGHT FOMALHAUT

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subject of Scientific Interest.

HAVE you ever seen Fomalhaut?

I ask this question because I have just received a letter from a gentleman who likes to study the heavens, and who tells me that he has never seen Fomalhaut. There are some strange things about Fomalhaut.

It is a star that has a surprising attraction for the eye, far greater than its actual magnitude would lead one to expect. It also exercises a singular fascination over those who have made its acquaintance. A well known newspaper editor, now dead, once said to me that he never looked at Fomalhaut without a kind of thrill, it was so bright, so beautiful and so lonesome.

Its solitary situation, no doubt, is one of the chief factors in giving it a peculiar distinction. Being far south of the celestial equator—a little over 30 degrees—it runs quite close to the southern horizon when seen from the northern part of the United States. It rises in the southeast and sets in the southwest, and, if there are nearby hills or mountains in that direction, it skims along above them, seeming to emit prismatic flashes, caused by the atmospheric undulations and refraction.

The colored scintillation startles the eye and fixes its attention, while the remarkable absence of bright stars from all that neighborhood of the sky where Fomalhaut burns adds impressive force to its lone beauty.

No other brilliant star visible in this part of the world describes so short a diurnal arc, i. e., remains so brief a time above the horizon. Fomalhaut is only about eight hours in passing from its rising to its setting as seen from the latitudes of New York and Chicago. Antares is visible nearly an hour longer and Sirius two hours and neither of these occupies so commanding a position, due to the complete lack of rivals to distract attention.

On account of the shortness of its arc of visibility and its nearness to the rim of the horizon Fomalhaut seems to race westward with great rapidity, while stars high overhead, though carried by the same apparent revolution of the heavens, appear to loiter on their way. Admiral Smyth, in his classic, "Cycle of Celestial Objects," talks of the "gallop" of Fomalhaut as compared with the "slow march" of Polaris. But nobody except an astronomer is likely to notice that Polaris marches at all. A better comparison would be with the lumbering tread of the "Great Bear" around the polar star.

When Fomalhaut rises the "Great Bear" is seen in the northwest, plodding down toward the centre of the northern horizon. When Fomalhaut is at the top of its arc in the south the Bear has just got his head well over the meridian below the pole. And when Fomalhaut finishes its brief course and sinks from sight in the southwest old Ursa Major appears, laboriously climbing the lower eastern slope of his eternal round, having completed only about one third of the circuit during Fomalhaut's "gallop" across the southern sky.

There can be no doubt that the priests who buried Tutankhamen and his beautiful queen in the land of Egypt knew Fomalhaut well, but by another name. The Arabs gave it the name we use. All navigators know Foma haut. It is one of the stars that has a column to itself in the Nautical Almanac, under the name of Alpha Piscis Australis. There are brighter stars of its rank—first magnitude—but none so magnified by seclusion.

THE ENEMIES OF WOMEN By BLASCO IBANEZ

Start Here Today This Engrossing Story of Life and Love from the Master Pen of One of the World's Greatest Novelists

THE STORY TO DATE.

Prince Michael Fedor, a Russian of fabulous wealth is at Monte Carlo while the Great War is on. With him is his friend, Atilio Castro, and other acquaintances. He announces, to the amusement of his hearers, that he is ruined. The Prince proposes that Castro and a few of their friends live together with the proviso that no women shall enter their lives. They will be known as "The Enemies of Women." Castro tells the Prince he has seen the Duchess de Delille. She calls at the Villa Sirena and asks the Prince to finance her gambling system.

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez,

Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown

"BUT in the meantime, how can I live?" she asked. "You have just freed me from a moral burden by forgetting about this debt. I thank you. But I must work: I want to earn some money. What is your advice?"

The Prince Astonished.

He was astonished. What work could Alicia do? Her question was laughable. But there she was, gravely facing him, convinced of her determination to work, and expecting illuminating counsel, as though her fate depended on him.

Fortunately Alicia herself, unable to bear the silence, began to explain her own ideas on the subject.

"What do you think of my turning my 'villa' into a boarding house? Could you help me with a little money to renew the furniture, and buy whatever is lacking? Nothing but aristocratic guests, generals, and tired ambassadors who come here in quest of sunlight."

The Prince replied with a burst of laughter.

"Why, you're crazy! They would all make love to you. In a few weeks your establishment would be a regular Inferno."

Alicia did not insist any further, considering his observations quite accurate. She thought it perfectly natural and logical that her guests should become enamored of her.

A Matter for Amusement.

The "Generalessa" had suggested another plan to her. She might open a tea-room in Monte Carlo, a very elegant one. The attraction of seeing her at the counter would draw people. For this she would not need a financial backer.

Once more Lubimoff burst out laughing.

"The Duchess de Delille's tea-room! That would be delightful; but once people's curiosity had been satisfied the only customers you would have would be those who were interested in your charms. No; that's not business."

She gave a look of somewhat comic dismay; what was she to do? A lady who is anxious for work can find no occupation in a world controlled and monopolized by men. She had nothing to fall back on except gambling. It was an exciting pleasure which made her forget her worries and at the same time gave her hope. Each day with gambling she opened a window to fortune, in case it should deign to remember her. Who knew but that sometime it might fold its golden wings and alight on a Casino table, and allow Alicia's slender hands to caress it, like a tame eagle.

"What could I do? her soft voice persisted. "I was reduced to worse and worse straits. In Paris my creditors were right at my heels, constantly bothering me; that's why I came to Monte Carlo. Now I'm gambling to forget and to make a living. 'There is love,' an old Arabendalion, a friend of mine said to me, 'that is selfish motive. But imagine—real, passionate love, whole-hearted love, the only solution for the sorrows of life, and at such a time! Oh, if I only could! But I feel I'm old, two thousand years old. You are younger, but you can count your life in centuries, too. Love, for such as you and me!"

The aged Duke de Delille takes leave of the Duchess when he starts for the war

At first, Lubimoff smiled at the tone of irony and disenchantment in which she spoke. Yes, they were very old. The great remedies, useful for the majority of people, had no effect on them. They as it were, had become insensible from satiety and weariness. Suddenly the Prince was moved by an indiscreet desire. He decided to take advantage of the opportunity to ask her a question.

"But you," he said, with masculine frankness, as though talking with a comrade, "still believe in love. They tell me about a boy, almost a child, whom you used to take with you everywhere before the war. Really, we are beginning to get old," he added with a smile, "when we feel we need the contact of youth. Was he your lover? Is he the reason for your worries?"

"It only if I had as much money as I had before, when your mother was still alive, and we used to live at Monte Carlo! But at that time I didn't know what I know today. I used to play just for amusement, just to enjoy the sensation of losing, which as a matter of fact didn't affect me very deeply."

Became Bolder

The smile of commiseration with which Michael listened to her seemed to make her bolder.

"But at that time I didn't know! Now I must win, and I play in a different way. What I need is capital! Last night I was lucky. I succeeded in winning fourteen thousand francs. But last week was bad. Sum total: I am still at thirty thousand; impossible to get any farther. And I don't run any chances. I'm afraid, and don't take advantage of the good runs of luck I do have. I ought to go on doubling, and doubling. I'm afraid of losing it all on a single stake. If I only had enough capital! If I were to go on into the Casino some afternoon with a hundred and fifty to two hundred thousand francs! That's the way to master luck. I ought to play big stakes. Imagine me, betting a hundred, and even as low as twenty-franc chips, like a retired money lender! That's the reason Fortune doesn't notice me, and passes by on the other side."

The Prince shook his head. It was all an old story to him; it was the way Spadoni, and even Castro, talked, but with a certain added fanaticism, characteristic of women, who are always mystic in money matters, inclined to believe in presentiments and mysterious influences.

"Don't count on my helping you to gamble. Besides, I'm poor. At the present moment the Colonel must have less cash in the strong box than you. I'm almost tempted to ask you to loan me your thirty thousand francs."

A Russian Prince of Fabulous Wealth and Some Friends Bind Themselves to Bar All Women From Lives

The Duchess turned pale at these questions, and hesitated. Then she made an effort to speak. It was evident that she was eager to be sincere. But her pallor was followed by a wave of crimson. Twice she tried to say something, and finally mastering her desire to talk she forced a mischievous smile.

"Let's not talk about that. We each have a right to our own secrets."

A Deep Secret

And to keep the Prince from relapsing into his curiosity she went on talking about gambling. But he did not listen to her; he was absorbed in his thoughts. He had hit the nail on the head, he told himself. That man was Alicia's lover, and it was on his account that she was suffering. Perhaps he was wounded, or a prisoner. He was the great obstacle in the way of her trip to America; he it was who kept her pinned down in Europe, in the superstitious belief that she could somehow ward off dangers better if she remained close at hand. And she seemed very much in love! A woman nearly forty years old, with a past that would fill a book, to feel such a powerful, such a youthful passion! To believe still in love!

Michael looked at her with an expression that was almost one of hatred. Her passion for the boy annoyed him without his being able to tell just why. This sudden feeling of hostility toward Alicia finally caused him to pay attention once more to what she was saying.

"Don't count on my helping you to gamble. Besides, I'm poor. At the present moment the Colonel must have less cash in the strong box than you. I'm almost tempted to ask you to loan me your thirty thousand francs."

A LIVING FAITH

AS IS SEEN IN COLLEGES

By Wm. A. McKeever,

Widely Known Lecturer and Author and a National Authority on Juvenile Problems.

IN the same college I have found mixed in their classes three distinct groups of young people.

First, there are pupils; that is, those possessing the mind and the interest of youth, who feel themselves all the time under some kind of outside pressure. Their bodies only are in college, while their minds are in the public school giving obedience.

Second, there are students; that is, those of the age of young men. The best of these are in college voluntarily, while the pupils are often "sent." These older ones are inclined to work more for the idea of mastering their lessons and obtaining knowledge. Diligence is a significant word with them.

Third, there are scholars: that is those who are out seeking some kind of special truth. They are real adults in the mind and poise. Research is their chief instrument of accomplishment and faith is the guiding principle of their college career.

My purpose in making this classification of college students is to point clearly the goal of the learner as being faith, an acquired, active, usable faith. And the learner should not be considered as worthy of graduation until he reaches this high point of vantage for his life.

Perhaps it is necessary to have entrance requirements of a mere academic nature, but were I the registrar these should receive only a glance. It is the degree of mind unfoldment, and not the memory of a few text book lessons, which tests the learner must fundamentally. Is he a pupil, a student or a scholar in his attitude and method? If he is not a scholar, how can he be advanced to that degree?

A scholar does not necessarily know much; he simply knows how to know. Watch your boy at college and see what he is interested in chiefly. If it is girls and sociability he is still a youth and a "pupil." If it is facts and mere knowledge, then he is at least a student. If it is practical knowledge which he seeks and is warm with a desire to serve society in some capacity, then he has the passion of the scholar, and is certain to be guided by faith.

"Faith is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen," says a scriptural adage. Now, this rule of faith applies to work and business as well as to religion. Not only should he finish his college course as a man of spiritual faith, but as one of a practical everyday faith in three things, namely, his work, his fellowman, his God.

When your son or daughter comes out of college with a diploma and with the three-fold faith, as just outlined, by watching his or her after career you may easily observe the significance of the statement that faith is "substance" and "evidence," for it is the subtle power within the awakened student which brings things to pass.

Do not be satisfied with the college student, whether your son, your daughter, or yourself, until this degree of scholarship and of faith in the unseen has been attained.

BEST RECIPES

Halibut Baked in Milk

Two pounds of halibut steak, cut ½ an inch thick. Lay in dripping pan, or large shallow baking dish. Dust it lightly with a little barley flour, salt and pepper and a sprinkling of parsley and barley. Cover it with 1 pint of milk. Bake in a moderate oven until fish is tender, about 25 minutes. It should be somewhat browned on top, and the liquid will be thickened by the barley flour and act as a delicious sauce. MRS. BESSIE MELENDY.

Maccaroons

Six whites of eggs, pinch of salt, ½ cup of sugar (large), 1 pound shredded cocoanut, juice of ½ lemon or teaspoonful. Beat the whites of eggs and pinch of salt in it firm, then add sugar and beat again. Add cocoanut and lemon juice, and mix well. Drop from spoon on buttered pan and bake in hot oven. These have to be watched or they will burn. Let cool before taking them out of pan. Then take them out carefully with knife.

FURNITURE IN HOME

—By Marian Moore—

EASY CHAIRS

A TALL floor lamp always makes a favorite of the easy chair by which it stands and, in order that several members of the family may share the light, it is well to group several chairs about the lamp.

Overstuffed furniture is extremely comfortable and has the added attractions of being stylish and serviceable. Thus, a reading lamp between two chairs of that style means a comfortable, cheerful place for two members of the family to read, sew or chat.

The chairs in the photograph are upholstered in gray velour, for which the portieres, in a warm shade of red, with gray stripes, make a pleasing background. The valance over the door is of red, edged top and bottom with gray braid. The lamp is attractive with a walnut base and parchment shade in amber color.

A glimpse of the hall appears between the portieres.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

By Blanche Silver.

David Changes His Mind About Some Things

"OH, shoot," David exclaimed cressly, when his mama called him in from his play to get her a bucket of water. "I hate washday!"

"Be careful which way you shoot," laughed a morry little voice, and Goosenback, the little travel elfin, hopped down from the branches over David's head to his side. "Be careful which way you point that gun. What's the shooting about, anyway?"

"Oh, washday," replied David, trying not to frown. "I never did like washday, and now that I'm big enough to get away from the house while it's going on, Mamma calls me to carry her water. I simply hate washday and I don't care who knows it."

"My goodness!" laughed Goosenback. "You might have reason to fuss if you lived in the land where a friend of mine lives. I'm sure the only way to prove it to you boys is to take you there and let you see for yourself."

"It's all right with me" laughed David. "Just let me fill Mama's tub first and I'll be right with you." And away he ran to get the water for his mother. Of course, no one could see it, but Goosenback helped him and the tubs were filled before you could say "Jack Robinson."

David caught Goosenback's hand and away they sailed through the air to a strange land.

The narrow streets were crowded with turbaned men wearing flowing gowns. Elephants and camels moved among the throng and David thought the whole scene looked like a great circus.

"You're in India," said Goosenback when he saw the questioning look on David's face. "And this is Calcutta."

"Oh! Look at the funny little sweetgoods out in the stream," David cried. "My goodness! they must like diving here. But still you couldn't dive in that water. It's too shallow. Aren't they funny!"

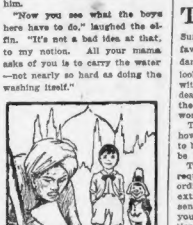
"You'll think they're funny when you know what they really are," replied Goosenback. "They're not diving-boards at all. They're wash-boards."

"Wash-boards!" laughed David. "You don't mean to say the women come down here to the stream to do their washing, do you?"

"Not the women," replied Goosenback. "Here in India they have the right idea of washing. At least, I think it's the right idea. The men do the washing. They take off all their clothes, except the drapery around their waists, put the wet clothes on the boards and pound them with a heavy club until they are clean."

Just as Goosenback finished speaking three washerman came up and began washing. It was all David could do to keep from laughing, they looked so funny to him.

"Now you see what the boys here have to do," laughed the elfin. "It's not a bad idea at that, to my notion. All your mama asks of you is to carry the water —not nearly so hard as doing the washing itself."



The Washerman Began Washing.

"My goodness, no!" replied David, and like magic the whole scene vanished. David once more was in his own back yard. He stood watching his mama a few seconds. Then he ran over and asked if he might help her.

That was the last time he ever complained when asked to carry water on wash-day.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

Today Lucky if You Have WILL POWER

THOSE born between February 19 and March 20, when the Sun is in Pisces, are generally so favored by the signs that the dangers to be avoided are few and overlooked and forgotten. They will without doubt experience a great deal of happiness, though not in the majority of cases blessed with worldly goods.

There are flies in the ointment, however, and adverse conditions to be overcome and temptations to be resisted.

The signs indicate that today will require the exertion of more than ordinary will power, the stifling of extreme and unusual emotional sentiments, and the calling on your entire reserve of sound, practically common sense.

You are likely to be exposed today to temptation to "do those things that you ought not to do," and to have to undone those things which you ought to do, as the evil elements will try to get you. (Watch for Tomorrow's Possibilities)

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

—By Ann Adams—

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

Is it good form for a wife to give her husband a wedding ring? MRS. F. E. R.

IT is good form, from the point of view of the religious service and from the point of view of etiquette, for the wife to give her husband a wedding ring. "The double ring service" in marriage is gaining in popularity in the United States. In some foreign countries, particularly France and Italy, the custom is more generally observed.

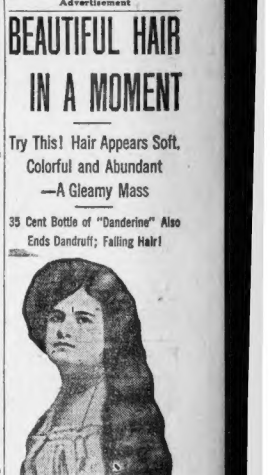
BEAUTIFUL HAIR IN A MOMENT

Try This! Hair Appears Soft, Colorful and Abundant —A Gleamy Mass

35 Cent Bottle of "Danderine" Also Ends Dandruff; Falling Hair!



Immediately!—your hair becomes beautiful. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking a small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil —in a few minutes your hair will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and really appear twice as thick and abundant—a mass of luxuriant, glinsy, colorful hair.

Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine eradicates dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is the best, cheapest and most delightful hair corrective and tonic. It is to the hair what fresh showers of rain are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, vivifies and nourishes them. Its stimulating properties help the hair to grow long, heavy, strong.

You can surely have beautiful hair, and lots of it, if you will spend 35 cents for a bottle of Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter. It is not greasy, oily or sticky.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

"Somebody's always taking the joy out of life."

That is the tenor of some business men's comment on the raising of the Federal Reserve rediscount rate at New York. They complain, rather bitterly, that it was the tightening of the money screws by the Federal Reserve Board which "spoiled the last boom."

And they ask somewhat testily if these same functionaries are next upon spoiling the fine business now getting under way.

* * *

To come straight to the point, my opinion is that the action just taken is prudent, inspired by foresight begotten by intimate knowledge of financial and economic laws and history.

Booms are abnormal things.

And the abnormal doesn't last. Good times, on the other hand, are, or ought to be, normal in a young, vigorous, fertile land like America with its unlimited resources, agricultural, mineral, industrial, commercial, financial.

The increasing of the rediscount rate at the monetary centre of the country is calculated to restrain boom developments which would inevitably lead us into trouble.

It is calculated to preserve some healthy, sound, satisfactory conditions.

Did you argue that no boom was coming, that no boom was within sight, that no boom was possible?

Then you have not been following recent developments with a keen, unprejudiced, analytical eye.

Railway traffic has been breaking all records.

Iron and steel exceeds all peace time figures.

Building is becoming beyond all precedent.

More cotton spindles—forty millions—are operating than ever before in, either peace time or war time.

Postal receipts are enormous.

Automobile factories are turning out new cars at an unparalleled rate.

The oil industry is booming.

Woolen manufacturers cannot cope with the avalanche of orders now swamping them.

Bills mills are most in the same position.

Sugar prices are soaring to new heights.

Copper has been rushing upwards and is now at the highest level since the post-war boom collapsed.

Steel, lead, tin, have all risen this week.

Cotton quotations have just broken into new high reaches for the season.

The cost of living is rising despite relatively poor returns being received for grain and other foodstuffs. The index numbers for February are bound to reveal an appreciable rise.

Labor is becoming scarce. Wages have begun to move upwards. And you can count upon very important developments in this direction.

* * *

If we will only be careful not to over-drive, not to go ahead at breakneck speed, all should be well for many months to come.

The raising of the rediscount rate at New York is a timely, salutary warning against overspeeding.

Stocks Rally After Midday Weakness; Oils and Specialties Most Active

FOUR CARRIERS SET NEW TOPS FOR YEAR

Stocks rallied in New York after morning irregularity and midday weakness. Oils and specialties became most active in late-day trading. Railroads were early leaders. New York Central, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore & Ohio and Northern Pacific rising to new 1923 tops.

Other year's highs were established by Cerro de Pasco, Jewell Tea, International Shoe, Eastman Kodak and Piggly-Wiggly, the last named up three points at 84½.

Baldwin dipped 2 points at 135¾ before rallying.

In the boomday dip Liggett & Myers dropped 7 points, Otis Elevator 5, Associated Oil 3, and Corn Products, General Asphalt, Coca Cola, American Ice, Atlantic Coast Line, American Smelting, Lima Locomotive, Crucible Steel and Porto Rican Tobacco 2 to 3¾.

On heavy dealings Steel common was bid up to a duplication of the years' high at 108¾ towards end of the first hour.

Standard Oil of New Jersey advanced to a new high on the move at 48 in response to further advance in price of gasoline in New York and New England territory. Some traders argue as Standard Oils are advancing there can be no protracted slump in the general market.

An extreme example of recent strength of Standard Oil issues is reflected in the course of the new stock of Vacuum Oil. Last year the old stock sold as low as $228 a share. Last week the new stock sold at a new high of 554. This was equal to $882 a share for the old, an advance of $384 from the low last year.

Red Metals Establish New Highs in Boston

Calumet & Hecla, Ahmeek and Arizona Commercial established new 1923 highs on the Boston Stock Exchange. Big Calumet rose 17 points to 378, and Ahmeek 9 points at 73. Old Colony Railroad lost 2 points at 77. Boston & Maine Class D dropped 2 points at 55. Calumet & Arizona slipped back 1¼ at 61¼.

Boston & Albany opened up 2 points, then sacrificed its gain. Atlas Tack rose a point at 39. Island Creek Coal was a point lower at 103¾.

United Fruit yielded 2¼ at 178.

Boston Notes

STOCKHOLDERS of Greelock Co. and of Lockwood, Greene & Co. at special meetings today voted on consolidation, involving purchase by latter of all assets of Greelock Co. each and issuance of $6,000,000 of 10 year 7 per cent. notes.

ATLAS Tack's earnings are reported running between $2.50 and $3 a share on common stock for 1922. It is expected to show $1.25 a share earned with current assets of $1,234,000 and current liabilities of $115,000. There are 95,000 shares.

AMERICAN Woolen's annual report will be issued March 5. Showing is sure to be excellent.

ONTARIO & Western, New Haven-controlled, is unlikely to pay dividend this year, according to market observers usually well informed. Heavy snows have proved great handicap.

NATIONAL LEATHER has at least plenty of room for appreciation, having done little in the market for a long time. It features sides of sole leather.

CENTRAL LEATHER, which handles sole leathers, is talked of for price advance, now that leather has started to climb in the general rise for commodities.

COPPER, passing 16 cents a pound, may be expected to keep on rising, as supplies of the metal are none too great at this figure.

BOSTON coppers have shown more strength in the past few weeks than for a couple of years.

INSPIRATION Copper is producing at rate of 9,000,000 pounds a month, about 90 per cent. of normal. Production cost is somewhat under 16 cents a pound.

DORCHESTER FAN'S WRINKLE WINS TUBE

A home-made varicometer, costing 15 cents, with which a receiver may be made regenerative, is the suggestion that wins the free vacuum tube for the best wrinkle of the week.

It was sent in by J. Churchill Bacon, Jr., of Lyndhurst street, Dorchester. Mr. Bacon formerly used the secondary of his loose coupler for a tickler coil, and was unable to tune out the local stations. With the 15-cent varicometer in the plate circuit, and the secondary of the loose-coupler used as such, he has heard on one jube stations in Illinois, Georgia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Canada.

Here is how he did it:

"Construct two spiderweb coils, using two pieces of cardboard wound with No. 24 copper wire. A quarter of a pound coils about 25 cents. There will be quite a lot of wire left after the coils are completed.

"The cardboard should be about six inches square, and should rather thin so to be flexible. Find the centre and cut seven slots radiating from the centre, wind fifty turns on each one.

"When the coils are complete, join the edges of the cardboards so that it will open like the leaves of a book. Connect the outside of the first coil to the inside of the second. Connect the inside of the first to the plate of the tube and the outside of the second to the B battery. I used some old "Erector" screws for binding posts.

"When tuning a station, close the leaves until just before the set commences to oscillate. The signals will be loudest at this point. By fasten ing the corners with an ordinary clip at the desired point, and then bringing the hand near the coil, a fine vernier control is secured. This is very close tuning and sometimes starts the tube to oscillate. Often by closing the leaves until the tube stops oscillating a new station is heard.

"I am using no variable, a new station is heard.

"I am using no variable condenser with my outfit, but I can obtain very great sensitivity."

CLOTHING CONCERN IN NEW LOCATION

MACULLAR PARKER STORE

The new store in the new Studio Building on Tremont street, at Bromfield, welcomed visitors today. "What a flood of daylight," was the expression generally heard.

The Macullar Parker Company was at home today at its new store in the New Studio Building on Tremont street, corner of Bromfield street.

The new location for these manufacturers and retailers of men's clothing was opened for business and for inspection.

"What a flood of daylight."

That expression was heard time and again as hundreds of visitors entered the store and began a tour of the place.

DAYLIGHT FEATURE.

The daylight feature, so helpful to customers in any clothing store, is due to special location factors. One is the corner site, which gives direct light from two approaches.

The other is the absence of buildings on the opposite side of Tremont street, a permanent absence on the westward side which will insure good light in the late afternoon hours.

They call this "The Old House with the Young Spirit." It was founded back in Forty-Nine. It has come sturdily down through the years under management of the same business family and now enters, with renewed energy, upon its fourth quarter-century. It is typically Bostonian in its long and honorable traditions.

OCCUPIED IN 1873.

The old store at No. 400 Washington street, from which removal has just been made, was occupied in 1873, following the use of temporary quarters after the Great Fire of '72.

Three Macullar Parker employes, Messrs. Hall, Bidwell and Mitchell, helped arrange stock at that removal fifty years ago and did the same last week at the company's bi-centennial.

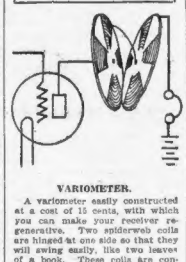
At the new location on Tremont street the company occupies the corner half of the street floor, the basement thereunder and the entire second floor.

RICHLY FITTED.

The street floor, with its entrances from Tremont street, Bromfield street and the public corridor, is devoted to business suits, haberdashery and hats. The second floor has overcoats, dress clothes, customs departments and boys' and students' departments and Clothcraft clothes and motor apparel are found in the basement. The shipping room and alteration shop are in the basement, allowing particularly quick service.

The interior of the new store is richly fitted. All standing finish and equipment are in American walnut, done in design of the Hoppelwhite period.

Clever innovation is the use of miniature display windows with curved fronts, placed at the corners of aisles on first and second floors.



VARIOMETER.

A varicometer easily constructed at a cost of 15 cents, with which you can make your receiver regenerative. Two spiderweb coils are hinged at one side so that they will swing easily, like two leaves of a book. These coils are connected in series with each other and connected like a variometer in the plate circuit.

HANDY BAG SALE TO BE RESUMED WEDNESDAY

Wednesday is the big day.

The sale of Handy Bags will resume at The Boston American office at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, February 28.

Thousands of them. Stacks and heaps of them that have cluttered the Boston American building until it looks like a warehouse, are waiting for American readers.

There'll be enough to go round. There'll be a Handy Bag for every one who wants one. The Boston American promises that. Enough have been ordered to meet the needs of Boston and New England.

The manufacturers are working day and night turning out the miles of Handy Bags. They have fashioned enough so that the sale could start today if necessary, but The Boston American wishes to be sure when it starts so that is why the day has been set as Wednesday. There will be a sufficiency then.

Then, too, readers who have neglected to clip coupons can CLIP TODAY'S, TOMORROW'S AND WEDNESDAY'S and get their bag the day the sale opens.

You who want a bag—and it seems that everybody must want one, judging from the scores of basketfuls of letters that have come in about them—START NOW, begin your clipping of coupons TODAY.

Do not forget that this is the bag of a thousand uses, the bag that has earned itself the title of "Handy Andy," probably due to the fact it is rightfully named Handy Bag. It is the bag of a century. It bids fair to make Boston famous.

WE STILL NEED THAT COAL EMBARGO

If the Republican Administration Continues to Believe That There Is No Suffering in New England on Account of Fuel, Then Watch the Republican Vote in the Next National Election

The chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission reports to the President that there is no coal scarcity in New England, and that, therefore, there is no need to take up the question of declaring an embargo on the shipment of "hard" coal to Canada.

Let us ASSUME for a moment that the warm comfort which New England is alleged to be enjoying, she actually and really is enjoying, and let us ASSUME, also, that the absurd statement which the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission makes to the President that if we are suffering at all, we simply suffer because we will not take bituminous or "soft" coal, but are demanding "hard" coal, IS true. Are we still not entitled to have an embargo on "hard" coal to Canada? The Canadians also prefer "hard" coal to "soft" coal. If we prefer it because we are used to it, because our furnaces are built for it, because our houses are furnished for it, because we do not know how to burn any other kind, and are not, therefore, in any way prepared for it, why should we not have the preference over Canada? Why should we be put to inconvenience, destructive of our ceilings, of our curtains, of our furniture, of our grates and of our health, impaired by a house constantly full of coal gas, in order that Canadians may have none of these inconveniences?

Would the Canadians treat us with the same distinguished consideration? Would Canadians be fools enough to say that charity begins abroad? Have we had no experience with Canadian embargoes? Canada is a good neighbor. We have repeated it often, and we mean it most sincerely but she is not of us, probably by her own choice. She exercised the right with perfect justice and propriety to consider her own interests first, and the people of New England demand that we should exercise the right to consider our own interests first, and that we should not export to Canada coal which we need in the New England States.

Now that we have dealt with the question upon the ASSUMPTION that what the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission reported to the President about the coal situation in New England is TRUE, we want to say that we ought not to have made the assumption for the Interstate Commerce Commission chairman reported what is untrue.

The people of New England are suffering from want of all kinds of coal. Some of them cannot use "soft" coal.

How did Mr. Meyer conduct his investigation? Whom did he hear? Mostly representatives of the railroads and the coal jobbers. What consumers did he hear? Doesn't he assume that Senator Walsh of this State knows more about our Winter situation in New England and is more disinterested than some of the representatives of the railroads, who are themselves the guilty parties in this wretched business, and the coal jobbers who are also in the conspiracy?

The Interstate Commerce Commission investigation was a farce, a disgraceful farce, and it illustrates perfectly the futility of undertaking to REGULATE our railroads. If we had public operation of the railroads we would have none of this nonsense.

The railroads came near losing us the war under private management. The government had to take them over and operate them all, in order to save insurrection in the Italian Army and the French Army, for want of grain we had promised them. The ships lay in the harbors, empty for weeks, waiting for the railroads to bring the food to them, while the warehouses and the fields of the West were heaped with grain, which the farmers had produced to feed the armies, waiting for the railroads under private management to come and take it and bear it to the coast. But the railroads under private management never came. Our government reluctantly took possession of them after the Prime Ministers of France, Italy and England warned us that unless something was done the war would be lost.

Let us take the railroads again and let us keep them this time.

German Wives of 'Our Boys'

They Make Fine Housekeepers

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

When the United States transport St. Mihiel arrived here some time ago and the American soldiers who had been in Germany, some of them since the close of the war, trooped off, there were present with them a number of German brides and not a few babies.

Germans may make bitter enemies, but German women make good wives. They are as a rule devoted to cleanliness, housekeeping and babies, which is not a bad sort of program, taking one consideration with another.

There have been all sorts of pow-wows about international relationships, ranging from a discussion of the League of Nations to the invasion of the Ruhr. But the kind of relationship indicated where German girls have concluded a treaty of peace (or war) with American doughboys is one little spot of brightness that glistens in the general dull debris of discussion.

When you have said that the German people are worth marrying, you have said what you cannot say of the people of every other nation.

WILD AND WOOLLY WAS THE WEEK JUST PASSED

COLLISION between the Capitol and the White House. The President loses control of his Senate majority. Bi-partisan filibusters unite under a political Jolly Roger and sink all present hopes of ship subsidy.

Coal rebellion in upper New York. Desperate citizens intercept passing shipments and fill their bins with confiscated fuel.

The Secret Service smashes a big counterfeiting gang and averts a further confounding of international money muddles.

Joseph Biata, alias Marcino, closes his Chicago barber shop four years ago and embarks on a financial career which shuts down the First National Bank of Warren, Mass., the Niagara Life Insurance Company of Buffalo and the Mechanics and Merchants Bank of Philadelphia.

The investigation of the Anti-Saloon League resolves itself into a fight to the last ditch.

Mr. Hughes, more determined to uphold American sovereignty in China than Mr. Bryan was inclined to defend it in Mexico, delivers a five-demand ultimatum to the dragon republic.

The Supreme Court, passing upon a high caste Hindu's eligibility for citizenship, overrules ethnology and decides that a black Caucasian is not a "white person."

Lloyd George attacks the Poincare government in open Parliament. The British Cabinet opposing further pension legislation wins by a whisper.

Manuel Herrick, self-confessed dare-devil of Congress, invites all foreign debtors to meet the United States in arms.

The Cleveland Discount Company, second largest mortgage concern in these United States, passes into receivership.

English chemists discover hafnium, a new element, and an American bride of eight months brings a new element to the news, with the announcement that her husband is a woman.

Puritanism, Disaster and Denunciation

Thirty miners indicted for conspiracy and violence in the Cliftonville strike riots break precedent and plead guilty to the charge.

Utah adds Puritanism to Mormonism and arrests four of its leading citizens for smoking cigarettes.

A quail of horror sweeps the country as the Ward Island Lunatic Asylum is revealed as a hopeless firetrap and a score of helpless imprisoned lunatics perish in the flames.

General Dawes' hell and marias, obstructive minorities, the George Society, pacifists, Bolshevists, klans, cliques and confusions, while Ambassador Herrick, at Paris, launches a philippic against the faithlessness and ruthlessness of internationalism.

Soviets, Swallowtails and the McCormicks

Poincare's projected recognition of the Soviets encounters an unexpected Verdun in President Millerand, who announces his intention to play a more important part in the management of French affairs.

Senator Brookhart, corn-belter to the last, in turn, issues his ca ne passe pas to the dress suit. For half a dare, he'd wear overalls and cowhide boots to a Presidential reception.

Louis had his sans culottes, Harding has his sans swallowtail.

Harold McCormick is traveling to California, Madam Walska is singing at Niagara and Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, on her own authority, is the former wife of Tutankhamen. Nothing heard from Max, Mathilde or Muriel.

The end of a strange and varied week.

Professors, Prelates and Jurists

Dr. Hibben of Princeton feels that the time has come to revise our college system. Dr. Pritchett is still convinced that a large percentage of university students are not profiting from their studies.

Dr. Grant and Dr. Wise maintain their stands against the authenticity of certain Biblical tradition.

Elihu Root foresees troublous days if our courts and legal code are not reformed. He warns four hundred leaders of the judiciary meeting at Washington and the bar that unless the practice of law is simplified and clarified, justice will soon be hopelessly tangled in obscurities and technicalities.

Birth Pains of a New Civilization

Earthover new forces are in ferment. Folk who never thought before—classes hitherto without a voice in management—are challenging all established order and method.

The sudden upset of European governments, the adaptation of peace machinery to war's necessities, the waning power of caste and the waxing strength of democracy, ruptured commerce and paralyzed finance, and social experiments and wilder economics have so stirred and bewildered humanity that folk everywhere are questioning the soundness and quality of existing institutions and constituted authority.

Civilization Reincarnates in Disorder's Smelting Pot

Renaissance follows rebellion. Wisdom and sanity emerge with fresh vigor and broader vision from such ordeals.

An old order is passing. Progress is in the throes of a rebirth. These are just growing pains.

It is only when men are not thinking for themselves—when they are not contending for their own ideals—when their wits and wills are not clashing—when ancient and obsolete fabrics are not crashing—that disaster need be feared and the future doubted.

Travail precedes triumph. The century is safe.

A Wireless Way for Everything

The older the road the more cause to suspect its survey. The world has just learned to count steps, inches and clockticks.

Whatever was planned in periods of cheap labor, low wages and convenient materials, invites re-estimate in this era of enormously increased production costs and perilously narrow margins of profit and loss.

There's a better way—if you don't find it the next man will. Nothing is perfected. The best facilities at hand are the result of the best thinking at the moment. The more thorough we become the more uncertain yesterday and its works appear.

There's a wireless method ahead for everything.

CHANCE FOR MIRACLES TODAY

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

THERE'S more chance for "miracles" today than ever before.

And that is because life is more varied, more complex and multiform than it has been. This increases the factors and the elements of chance and gives greater occasion for the unusual to happen.

In all ages "miracles" are mainly the extraordinary, the startling, the inexplicable or unexplained, that which is contrary to experience and which, therefore, "could not" happen without outside intervention.

But—we also know today how little we know. Those who know this have greater respect for the unknown.

On this basis, too, they expect the unexpected. And when the unexpected happens they accept it as an expression of law, perhaps not recognized or understood; but always as the expression of law.

For it is the part of the reverently scientific temper of our times to regard the universe as orderly.

In a world of law and order, there are no miracles; but everything is "miraculous."

That is to say, all the intricate, but dependable, workings of an orderly universe call for the spirit of wonder.

The "meanest flower that blows" is as marvelous as the radiophone or the mysterious efficiency of the human mind.

Any of these can call forth thoughts that lie too deep for tears.

Six Foot Boy Has Chaperon

LEWISTOWN, Mont., Feb. 26.—Maintaining that he should be allowed to attend public dances without a chaperon, inasmuch as he is six feet four inches tall and would, in any town where he was not known, be taken for more than twenty-one, William Wadell, eighteen, of this city, recently presented his case to the city fathers.

After grave consideration, they informed the young man that the Council had no power to suspend ordinances in individual cases, so the six-foot-four infant must pack along a chaperon if he desires to attend dances in his "home town."

Distribute Phelan's Coal

Editor Boston American:

I think that Mr. Phelan did break his own rule, and has broken many a poor heart. It would be a great relief to have him out of office and all others like him, as he certainly did not do his duty. As he is leaving for the South, I would suggest that a few trucks back up to his house, take what coal there is left and let your paper distribute same where it is most needed.

More Than His Share

Editor Boston American:

James J. Phelan, esteemed fuel administrator for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts says: "Massachusetts has received more anthracite coal than she was entitled to this Winter." Mr. Phelan did, according to his own admissions. The citizens of Massachusetts were supposed to receive 60 per cent. of their normal quota of anthracite coal and the balance of their requirements in other fuel substitutes. What became of the 40 per cent. of fuel substitutes that he was supposed to burn?

To Relieve Traffic

Editor Boston American:

I wish to offer the suggestion that you ask the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad why they continue to use six drive-wheel freight locomotives to haul four passenger cars if, as they claim in circulars posted in all stations and in daily papers, they are short of locomotives to handle freight, including coal.

I hardly think the excuse that the public would not stand for it will apply now.

Digging for King Tut

Editor Boston American:

For the last week or more the papers of this and surrounding cities have been filled with news of the exploration party which has unearthed the ancient tomb of some bygone King. I understand that English capital is financing this expedition on the strength that all [illegible], jewels and the like be turned over to them, to be known hereafter as English property.

Can you conceive any Englishman as being pleased were any delegation from any other nation to go over there and tear apart Westminster Abbey?

Growth Held to Menace Europe

LONDON, Feb. 26.—"My Peep at America" was the subject of a lecture by Mr. Harold Spender to members of the English Speaking Union here recently.

"The United States," he said, "could hold a population of one thousand millions. At present it has only one hundred and ten millions. Four hundred millions would be a reasonable population, and as many as the country could feed without importation.

"The really formidable fact for Europe is that unless the growth of America is carefully regulated and guided by a tolerant policy it will mean the downfall of Europe, for if America develops so large a population she will have no surplus for us, either of food, iron, cotton or oil. America's present attitude towards Great Britain is more friendly than it was two years ago.

"The Irish settlement has helped to promote this better feeling."
